1888-1988 Yu Ouyang, 2008 The first Chinese in Australia are said to have arrived as early as 1818 and since then many more have made Australia their homeland the current Chinese population is over half a million It is therefore not surprising that the Chinese are featured in many Australian literary works This book examines the representation of the Chinese in Australian fiction from 1888 to 1988 with an Author Commentary at the end that provides a brief update on the subsequent fictional representations of the Chinese It begins with an overview of the Chinese in Australian and Chinese history followed by a theoretical examination of how the Chinese are made the Other by Orientalism racism and ethnocentrism It discusses literary texts written over a period of one hundred years from 1888 to 1988 The study is divided into three major periods of 1888 1901 1902 1949 and 1950 1988 The first period 1888 1901 deals with the initial attempts to represent the Chinese in fiction as the bad Other by the early Bulletin writers the Australian responses to the rise of the fear of the Yellow Peril in invasion literature and the imperialist will to power over the Chinese in writings set in China by Anglo Australian writers Apart from pursuing the issue of the continued fear and stereotyping of the Chinese in popular writing the second period 1902 1949 introduces a new phenomenon of literary Sinophilism that dichotomizes the representation of the Chinese and examines the image of Chinese women The third period 1950 1988 focuses on the problem of politicisation that polarizes literary attitudes towards the Chinese and discusses Australia's Asian writing as an extension of colonial writing that continues to Other the Chinese and explores multicultural writing as an alternative means of representation This is an important book that illustrates how the Other is represented and will be a valuable book for those in Australian studies Asian studies and literary studies Westerly ,1991 South Africa in English-language Children's Literature, 1814-1912 Elwyn Jenkins,2002 While such countries as Canada Australia and New Zealand have long had full attention paid to their children's English language bibliographical heritage South Africa has not until now This is a book about children's literature that was written in English and a was written by a South African or b had noteworthy South African content or c was published in South Africa Chapter One covers the authors and their books providing brief biographical sketches of important authors and descriptions of some of their works Chapter Two discusses the readers of such literature and how the authors came to write for their particular audiences Chapters Three through Nine discuss multiple heroes and action gender issues piety humor South Africa's natural history language names indigenous inhabitants English speaking colonials and the British and politics and war as they relate to South Africa in children's literature The Lion and the Unicorn ,1998 A critical journal of children's literature Australian Books in Print ,1992 Tasman Relations Keith Sinclair,1987 At the invitation of the Australia New Zealand Foundation and as a recognition of two hundred years of European settlement in Australia the noted historian Sir Keith Sinclair has brought together a team of authorities from both sides of the Tasman Experts in their fields they present a lucid perceptive and astonishingly coherent picture of 200 years of contact Chapters range from a fascinating account of Maori perceptions of Australian settlement in the 1840s to a detailed study of recent trade relations between two countries including the recent CER Closer Economic Relations free trade agreement Among subjects covered are population literary relations defence and religion A hard hitting chapter compares the lives of women in the two colonies among the first countries in the world to give the vote to women Intergovernmental relations are highlighted at different historical periods and on different matters of common concern Two personal impressions of a New Zealander in Australia and of an Australian in New Zealand show vividly and often amusingly the daily contrasts and contradictions experienced by those who cross the Tasman to live Rounding off the volume is a penetrating overview by Geoffrey Blainey of relations between the two countries identifying in some striking and unusual ways the resemblances and differences between them Inside front cover Index to Australian Book Reviews ,1981 Includes entries supplied by University of Queensland Library Staff
