The internationally acclaimed sex researchers William H. Masters, Virginia E. Johnson and Robert C. Kolodny produce here for the first time a comprehensive warm and highly readable survey of their findings The remarkable range of complexities biological psychological and social make up human sexuality And best of all the authors describe how to use this information to heighten the quality of your intimate relations They explore current research on the nature of love the meaning of sexual fantasies and common problems people having in attaining and maintaining sexual intimacy Through Human Love to God Pamela Williams, 2007

Dante and Petrarch are two of the world's greatest love poets who convey the story of their emotional intellectual and religious life in part through a story of human love The focus here is not so much on the myriad symbolic values and associations of Beatrice and Laura but rather both on the attitudes of these two poets to sexual desire in order to throw some light on the character of their human love and on the status and value they give to human love in the context of their Christian lives For all the stark contrasts between them Dante and Petrarch have been often compared for they write in a common literary classical and Christian tradition The comparison generally leads to the conclusion that Dante describes his human love experience as positive and constructive whilst Petrarch's experience of love is negative and destructive My intention here is not to polarize their views in this way but rather to identify the different yet positive and highly original value both poets attribute to human love

More than fifty years ago Etienne Gilson claimed that Peter Abelard turned to loving God in the way that Heloise had loved him with the disinterestedness which she claimed in loving him and which she accused him of never understanding in loving her It is the general argument of this study that Dante and Petrarch as well as leaving their original mark on the treatment of love in literature have insights into religion personal to them which can be likewise characterized by examining their attitude to human love and the story of their personal loves There are many more aspects to their Catholicism than are examined in these essays The discussion here is of that part of their faith which grows out of is coloured by or at least can be explored through their human loving Human
