Patterns Of Development Resources Policy And Economic Growth:

Patterns of Development Richard M. Auty, 1995 This authoritative new study provides a unique comparative analysis of postwar economic performance within the developing world Using the most up to date statistics it explains the diverging economic achievements of five main types of developing country Richard Auty focuses on internal policies and particularly on the impact of natural resource endowment on policy choice The tendency for well endowed countries to underperform in relation to their potential is noted and explained in terms of the emerging resource curse thesis The author argues persuasively that economic policies which secure rapid and equitable per capita economic growth can now be identified As a result priority is now being placed on environmentally sustainable development and political pluralism Within this broad thesis the book pursues five central themes rural neglect income inequality hyperurbanization unequal terms of trade and the role of government in the development process Each theme is discussed with reference to one of the five country types noting the key implications for the other four Blending economic environmental and socio political perspectives Patterns of Development offers a fresh approach to economic development and will be welcomed by those seeking an accessible and up to date introduction to the subject Water Resources Policy Issues United States. Growing Apart Peter Lewis, 2007-04-17 Growing Apart is an important and distinguished contribution to the literature on the political economy of development Indonesia and Nigeria have long presented one of the most natural opportunities for comparative study Peter Lewis one of America's best scholars of Nigeria has produced the definitive treatment of their divergent development paths In the process he tells us much theoretically about when why and how political institutions shape economic growth Larry Diamond Senior Fellow Hoover Institution Growing Apart is a careful and sophisticated analysis of the political factors that have shaped the economic fortunes of Indonesia and Nigeria Both scholars and policymakers will benefit from this book's valuable insights Michael L Ross Associate Professor of Political Science Chair of International Development Studies UCLA Lewis presents an extraordinarily well documented comparative case study of two countries with a great deal in common and yet with remarkably different postcolonial histories His approach is a welcome departure from currently fashionable attempts to explain development using large multi country databases packed with often dubious measures of various aspects of governance Ross H McLeod Editor Bulletin of Indonesian Economic Studies This is a highly readable and important book Peter Lewis provides us with both a compelling institutionalist analysis of economic development performance and a very insightful comparative account of the political economies of two highly complex developing countries Nigeria and Indonesia His well informed account generates interesting findings by focusing on the ability of leaders in both countries to make credible commitments to the private sector and assemble pro growth coalitions This kind of cross regional political economy is often advocated in the profession but actually quite rare because it is so hard to do well Lewis s book will set the standard for a long time Nicolas van de Walle John S Knight Professor of International Studies Cornell University Peter M Lewis is Associate Professor and Director of the African Studies Program Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies      The Blue Compendium Jane Lubchenco, Peter M.

Haugan, 2023-05-24 Home to over 80 percent of all life on Earth the ocean is the world s largest carbon sink and a key source of food and economic security for billions of people The relevance of the ocean for humanity s future is undisputed However the ocean s great potential to drive economic growth and equitable job creation sustain healthy ecosystems and mitigate climate change is not yet fully recognised Lack of awareness of this potential as well as management and governance challenges pose impediments Until these impediments are removed ocean ecosystems will continue to be degraded and opportunities for people lost A transition and a clear path to a thriving and vibrant relationship between humans and the ocean are urgently needed This open access collection of papers and reports identifies a path that is inspired by science energised by engaged people and emboldened by visionary leaders These assessments of knowledge are commissioned by the High Level Panel for a Sustainable Ocean Economy Ocean Panel which was established in September 2018 as a unique initiative led by heads of state and government from around the world to showcase the latest leading edge science knowledge and state of the art thinking on key ocean issues Altogether The Blue Compendium offers innovative ocean solutions in technology policy governance and finance realms that could help accelerate a transition to a more sustainable and prosperous relationship with the ocean The comprehensive assessments have already informed policy making at the highest levels of government and motivated an impressive array of responsive and ambitious action across a growing network of leaders in business finance and civil society      Urban Carbon Emissions and Anthropogenic Activities Ji Zheng, Mariarosaria Lombardi, Joanna Rosak-Szyrocka , Yu Li, 2025-09-22 The escalating threats of global climate change and the rise in natural disasters are urgent calls for action for sustainable development Urban areas occupying a mere 2% of the land surface harbor a striking 56% of the global population produce 70% of global GDP and significantly contribute to greenhouse gas emissions with a staggering 70% of the worldwide total Such high carbon emissions solidify urban areas as a key role in achieving global climate goals The transition to low carbon cities is a necessary step in reducing anthropogenic carbon emissions A thorough understanding of carbon emissions and anthropogenic activities in urban areas and their interaction mechanisms is the basis for the construction of low carbon cities This Research Topic seeks high quality research that investigates the various sources of carbon emissions in urban environments including transportation buildings industrial processes waste management etc We aim to address the challenges and provide opportunities for reducing carbon emissions in urban areas from the advancement of sustainable practices and innovative technologies to the development of effective policy measures It is crucial to explore the complex relationship between anthropogenic activities and carbon emissions in urban areas Our goal is to provide valuable insights for researchers policymakers urban planners and stakeholders on how to mitigate and adapt to climate change in urban areas and achieve global carbon neutrality targets Topics of interest include but are not limited to Innovative method of carbon accounting at city sub city or neighborhood scales Carbon footprint assessment across various urban sectors e g transportation building industrial residential commercial etc The impact of urbanization on carbon emissions Roles of urban forestry and green spaces in carbon sequestration Interactive mechanism between carbon emissions and anthropogenic activities in urban areas Impact assessment of smart technologies and emerging lifestyles e g intelligent transportation systems shared mobility virtual meetings on urban carbon emissions

Challenging the Growth Machine Barbara Ferman,1996 Economic development and urban growth are the contested grounds of urban politics Business elites and politicians tend to forge pro growth coalitions centered around downtown development while progressive and neighborhood activists counter with a more balanced approach that features a strong neighborhood component Urban politics is often shaped by this conflict which has intellectual as well as practical dimensions In some cities neighborhood interests have triumphed in others the pro growth agenda has prevailed In this illuminating comparative study Barbara Ferman demonstrates why neighborhood challenges to pro growth politics were much more successful in Pittsburgh than they were in Chicago Operating largely in the civic arena Pittsburgh s neighborhood groups encountered a political culture and institutional structure conducive to empowering neighborhood progressivism in housing and economic development policymaking In contrast the pro growth agenda in Chicago was challenged in the electoral arena which was dominated by machine ward based politicians who regarded any independent neighborhood organizing as a threat Consequently neighborhood demands for policymaking input were usually thwarted Besides revealing why the development policies of two important American cities diverged Ferman s unique comparative approach to this issue significantly expands the scope of urban analysis Among other things it provides the first serious study to incorporate the civic sector neighborhood politics as an important component of urban regimes Ferman also emphasizes institutional and cultural factors often ignored or relegated to residual roles in other studies and expounds on their influence in shaping local politics and policy To add an analytical and normative dimension to urban analysis she focuses on the non elite actors not just the economic and political elites who compose governing coalitions Ultimately Ferman takes a more holistic and balanced view of large cities than is typical for urban studies as she argues that neighborhoods are an important integral part of what cities are and can be For that reason especially her work will have a profound impact upon our understanding of urban politics
