culture and society, media and cultural theory, popular culture and cultural sociology. Isak Dinesen and the Engendering of Narrative Susan Hardy Aiken, 1990-04-05 Although Isak Dinesen has been widely acclaimed as a popular writer, her work has received little sustained critical attention. In this revisionist study, Susan Hardy Aiken takes up the complex relations of gender, sexuality and representation in Dinesen's narratives. Drawing on feminist, psychoanalytic and post-structuralist theories, Aiken shows how the form and meaning of Dinesen's texts are affected by her doubled situations as a Dane who wrote in English, a European who lived for many years in Africa, and a woman who wrote under a male pseudonym within a male-centered literary tradition. In a series of readings that range across Dinesen's career, Aiken demonstrates that Dinesen persistently asserted the inseparability of gender and the engendering of narrative. She argues that Dinesen's texts anticipate in remarkable ways some of the most radical insights of contemporary literary theories, particularly those of French feminist criticism. Aiken also offers a major rereading of Out of Africa that both addresses its distinctiveness as a colonialist text and places it within Dinesen's larger oeuvre. In Aiken's account, Dinesen's work emerges as a compelling inquiry into sexual difference and the ways it informs culture, subjectivity and the language that is their medium. This important book will at last give Isak Dinesen's work the prominence it deserves in literary studies. Post-Materialist Religion Mika T. Lassander, 2014-08-28 Post-Materialist Religion discusses the transformations of the individual's worldview in contemporary modern societies and the role general societal value change plays in these In doing so Mika Lassander brings into conversation sociological theories of secularisation and social psychological theories of interpersonal relations the development of morality and the nature of basic human values The long term decline of traditional religiosity in Europe and the emerging ethos that can be described as post secular have brought religion and values back into popular discussion One important theme in these discussions is about the links between religion and values with the most common assumption being that religions are the source of individuals values This book argues for the opposite view suggesting that religions or people s worldviews in general reflect the individual s priorities Mika Lassander argues that the transformation of the individual s worldview is a direct consequence of the social and economical changes in European societies since the Second World War He suggests that the decline of traditional religiosity is not an indication of linear secularisation or of forgetting traditions but an indication of the loss of relevance of some aspects of the traditional institutional religions Furthermore he argues that this is not an indication of the loss of ethical value base but rather a change in the value base and consequently the transformation of the legitimating framework of this value base Folkways and Law Ways Helle Porsdam, 2001 Porsdam American studies U of Southern Denmark arguing that every major political and cultural issue in the United States inevitably turns into a legal one presents 10 essays by European academics that examine law in American society as an inherent and important part of the cultural milieu Papers look at the revival of anti federalist thought conservative opposition to civil rights legislation the treatment of the law in Hollywood courtroom dramas the cultural history of corporate legal theory and the conception of law put forth by William Gaddis s novel A Frolic of His Own Distributed by ISBS Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR In Search of the Classic Steven Shankman, 1994 The classical Steven Shankman argues should not be confused with a particular historical period of Western antiquity although it may owe its original articulation to the literary and philosophical explorations of ancient Greek authors Shankman s book searches for and attempts to formulate the shape of the continuing presence as embodied in particular literary works mainly from Western antiquity and the neoclassical and modern periods of what the author calls a classical understanding of literature For Shankman literature defined from a classical perspective is a coherent compelling and rationally defensible representation that resists being reduced either to the mere recording of material reality or to the bare exemplification of an abstract philosophical precept He derives his definition largely from his reading of Greek literature from Homer through Plato from the history of literary criticism and from the Greco Roman tradition in English American and French literature Shankman reveals unsuspected yet convincing connections among authors of such widely disparate times and places His idea of the classic that authorizes these connections is presented as normative thus making possible the evaluation of literary works and in turn forthright discussion of what constitutes the literary as distinct from other kinds of discourse Shankman s study runs counter to a strong tendency of contemporary criticism that argues precisely against any distinct category of the literary He offers a series of interpretations that cumulatively advance theoretical discussion by challenging scholars to rethink the critical paradigms of postmodernism At the center of the book is a discussion of the quintessentially classic Val ry poem Le Cimetière marin and the classic qualities it shares with Pindar's third Pythian ode from which Val ry derives the epigraph for his poem

From Science to Subjectivity Walter Soffer, 1987-08-26 The past two decades have witnessed a flourishing of studies on Descartes by English language commentators The focus of attention has been the Meditations which continues to be regarded as the Archimedean point of Cartesian philosophy The schism that has characterized the history of Cartesian scholarship persists throughout this most recent revival of interest in Descartes The fundamental issue continues to be the question concerning the sincerity or insincerity of Descartes theological metaphysics

Women, the Environment and Sustainable Development Rosi Braidotti, International Research and Training Institute for the Advancement of Women, 1994 There is a widespread perception that the development process is in a state of multiple crisis While the notion of sustainable development is supposed to address adequately its environmental dimensions there is still no agreed framework relating women to this new perspective This book is an attempt to present and disentangle the various positions put forward by major actors and to clarify the political and theoretical issues that are at stake in the debates on women the environment and sustainable development Among the current critiques of the Western model of development which the authors review are the feminist analysis of Science itself and the power relations inherent in the production of knowledge
