Using New Technologies to Enhance Teaching and Learning in History Terry Haydn, 2013 Nearly all history teachers are interested in how new technology might be used to improve teaching and learning in history However not all history departments have had the time expertise and guidance which would enable them to fully explore the wide range of ways in which ICT might help them to teach their subject more effectively This much needed collection offers practical guidance and examples of the ways in which new technology can enhance pupil engagement in the subject impact on knowledge retention get pupils learning outside the history classroom and help them to work collaboratively using a range of Web 2.0 applications. The chapters written by experienced practitioners and experts in the field of history education and ICT explore topics such as how to design web interactivities for your pupils, what can you accomplish with a wiki, how to get going in digital video editing, what to do with the VLE, making best use of the interactive whiteboard, designing effective pupil webquests, digital storytelling in history, making full use of major history websites, using social media. Using New Technologies to Enhance Teaching and Learning in History is essential reading for all trainee, newly qualified and experienced teachers of history. It addresses many of the problems, barriers and dangers which new technology can pose, but it also clearly explains and exemplifies the wide range of ways in which ICT can be used to radically improve the quality of pupils' experience of learning history.

Resources in education, 1987-05 Against the Odds Jeremy Price, 2000-05-24. Through examining the meanings and experiences of the six young men in this study, we can expand our understanding of the complexities of the lives of African American men and simultaneously challenge seemingly unidimensional images of black men.

Writing the Motherline Beth Blue Swadener, Leigh M. O'Brien, 2006-10-02. In this co-edited volume, women educators figuratively gather in the red tent, Diamant 1997, to share stories of the inseparability of what they do as mothers of daughters and grandmothers of granddaughters from their work as educators and social activists. By acting and speaking jointly and publicly about their varying projects of mothering and educating, this work celebrates mothers and daughters' strengths and the bonds between them. This work considers the mother-daughter bond through maternal storytelling or narrative and the Motherline. The narratives foreground the theory that a strong mother-daughter connection leads to empowerment and attempt to link that connection with education as grand-mother educators and their granddaughters weave their personal and professional lives into an ever-evolving tapestry. Drawing from a range of feminist theories in action, contributors to this volume offer stories of the Motherlines that illuminate the complexities of these powerful relationships. Using counter-narratives to patriarchal framings of family, this collection affirms the power of women educators telling and reading their stories as a means of self-discovery, empowerment and ultimately cultural transformation.
