Sculptural Ceramics:

Contemporary British Ceramics and the Influence of Sculpture Laura Gray, 2018-01-02 This book investigates how British contemporary artists who work with clay have managed in the space of a single generation to take ceramics from niche interest craft to the pristine territories of the contemporary art gallery This development has been accompanied and perhaps propelled by the kind of critical discussion usually reserved for the higher discipline of sculpture Ceramics is now encountering and colliding with sculpture both formally and intellectually Laura Gray examines what this means for the old hierarchies between art and craft the identity of the potter and the character of a discipline tied to a specific material but wanting to participate in critical discussions that extend far beyond clay Sculptural Ceramics Ian Gregory, 1999 In this book Ian Gregory first sketches the history of man's clay figure work He then provides essential technical information for the would be sculptural ceramacist The author uses examples of work from all over the world to show just what a diverse and creative area of ceramics this is Sculptural Ceramics has been designed as an introduction and practical hand book to the subject It is also an inspiration for other potters and a source of delight for all those interested in contemporary ceramics BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved Sculpture, 2004-07

Large-scale Ceramic Sculpture, 1979 Ceramics, Art and Perception, 2001 Ceramics; a Potter's Handbook Glenn C. Nelson, 1971 This classic handbook introduces students to the fundamentals of the ceramic arts beginning with a comprehensive history of ceramic materials techniques and practices up to the present day and then moving to a detailed presentation of ceramic techniques from the most basic to the complex This new edition has been thoroughly updated throughout to incorporate the many new resources and materials available to ceramists as well as the most current techniques and technical and safety information Copyright Libri GmbH All rights reserved Sculptural Ceramics Ian Gregory, 1999 Clays Glazes Slips Construction methods and decoration Techniques Hand-formed Ceramics Richard Zakin, 1995 Follow author Richard Zakin on a global survey of techniques for creating sculpture vessels and wall pieces Includes complete instructions and reviews the advantages and disadvantages of forming methods Also provides tips aplenty on the art of combining forming methods A Re-conceptualisation of Contemporary Sculptural Ceramics Practice from a Post-minimalist Perspective Wendy Patricia Tuxill, 2011 This thesis examines the extent to which the 1960s process art strand of post Minimalism can provide an analytical template for critical writing around contemporary ceramic art A dearth of critical writing is an acknowledged problem in all types of ceramics practice and some of the reasons for this situation will be explored In the past decade frequent calls have been made by artists critics academics and curators for a body of critical writing to underpin contemporary work and connect with wider cultural debates During this period artists have begun to use the process of making the work to form part of the content Such work has no relationship to traditional studio pottery and critics have described it as difficult to write about and classify in normative ceramic terms However this area of ceramic practice shares characteristics with post Minimalism a movement of the 1960s that emphasised the behaviour of materials and the act of making In The Archaeology of Knowledge the French philosopher Michel Foucault suggests that a new critical language may emerge from the appropriation of other discourses providing new interpretations for subject areas not yet theoretically mapped out Foucault's notions on the formation of discourse are used as a methodological approach to investigate how process led sculptural ceramics may be articulated by an understanding of post Minimalist critical writings A substantial body of critical writing developed around post Minimalist process art providing a context for radical new approaches which broke with modernist traditions and which expanded and changed traditional definitions of sculpture Key post Minimalist texts are investigated as an analytical template for a new critical discourse for process led ceramic art A study of the sculptural ceramics of Richard Deacon and Kosho is undertaken as a means of identifying process led tendencies and the possibility of a re conceptualisation from a post minimalist perspective An analysis of the role of process within my own practice is used to provide visual evidence of contemporary ceramic work that can be re conceptualised from a post Minimalist perspective After twenty years of stagnant debate in the ceramics field this research might provide a new critical context for process led ceramic art The project shows a way that artists may be empowered to develop a critical literacy in a field that has traditionally lacked a research based approach It is hoped that it may well encourage other ceramics practitioners to explore new ways of presenting an academic critique of their own area of practice The contribution to knowledge identifies a new critical context and approach to writing for the process led area of ceramics practice that is currently described as being difficult to write about as having no appropriate critical language of its own and of being difficult to categorise in standard ceramic terms
