Near Bermuda Nicolas Gruber, Charles D. Keeling, 1999-10-04 Each year the concentration of dissolved inorganic carbon DIC in the mixed layer at Station S in the Sargasso Sea decreases from winter to summer by about 30 $\mu\text{mol kg}^{-1}$ The authors of this study demonstrate that by simultaneously observing changes in the stable isotopic ration of DIC it is possible to quantify the contribution of physical and biological processes to this summer fall drawdown They find that biology is the dominant contributor to the drawdown but that physical processes also play an important role Foundations for Ecological Research West of the Antarctic Peninsula Robin M. Ross, Eileen E. Hofmann, Langdon B. Quetin, 1996-01-09 Published by the American Geophysical Union as part of the Antarctic Research Series Volume 70 The Long Term Ecological Research LTER Program was established in 1981 by the United States National Science Foundation in recognition of the need to study ecological processes over time spans longer than those of most research grants The LTER Network now consists of 18 sites that span a variety of ecosystem types in the continental United States Alaska Puerto Rico and Antarctica The addition of the Palmer LTER at Palmer Station Antarctica in October 1990 extended the geographical and ecological range of the LTER Network and provided the opportunity to link physical and ecological processes in the northern and southern hemispheres One criterion for establishment of a LTER site is the existence of historical data and observations that can provide a basis for guiding research programs Thus the intent of this volume is to bring together meteorological hydrographical biological and ecological observations made in the general area west of the Antarctic Peninsula and to discuss the processes underlying the observations This compilation of available data and observations in conjunction with the present understanding of processes provides the foundation for long term studies of the ecosystem in the western Antarctic Peninsula region The Sea, Ideas and Observations on Progress in the Study of the Seas ,1962 University of Washington Publications in Oceanography University of Washington,1931 Technical Report ,1965 Contributions University of Washington.
