

A watercolor illustration of a bunch of grapes. The grapes are rendered in various shades of purple, pink, and blue, with some showing highlights and shadows to give them a three-dimensional appearance. They are surrounded by large, broad leaves in shades of green and yellow, suggesting a sunlit vineyard. The background is a soft, light blue and white wash.

Wilcox, 1987 A Dictionary of Terms in Art Frederick William Fairholt, 1870 In Search of the Classic Steven Shankman, 1994 The classical Steven Shankman argues should not be confused with a particular historical period of Western antiquity although it may owe its original articulation to the literary and philosophical explorations of ancient Greek authors Shankman's book searches for and attempts to formulate the shape of the continuing presence as embodied in particular literary works mainly from Western antiquity and the neoclassical and modern periods of what the author calls a classical understanding of literature For Shankman literature defined from a classical perspective is a coherent compelling and rationally defensible representation that resists being reduced either to the mere recording of material reality or to the bare exemplification of an abstract philosophical precept He derives his definition largely from his reading of Greek literature from Homer through Plato from the history of literary criticism and from the Greco Roman tradition in English American and French literature Shankman reveals unsuspected yet convincing connections among authors of such widely disparate times and places His idea of the classic that authorizes these connections is presented as normative thus making possible the evaluation of literary works and in turn forthright discussion of what constitutes the literary as distinct from other kinds of discourse Shankman's study runs counter to a strong tendency of contemporary criticism that argues precisely against any distinct category of the literary He offers a series of interpretations that cumulatively advance theoretical discussion by challenging scholars to rethink the critical paradigms of postmodernism At the center of the book is a discussion of the quintessentially classic Val ry poem Le Cimetière marin and the classic qualities it shares with Pindar's third Pythian ode from which Val ry derives the epigraph for his poem The Senses and the Intellect Alexander Bain,1874 Dwight's Journal of Music ,1878
