Science and Building Henry J. Cowan, 1978      Science and building Henry J. Cowan,      The Architecture of Persistence David Fannon, Michelle Laboy, Peter Wiederspahn, 2021-08-24 The Architecture of Persistence argues that continued human use is the ultimate measure of sustainability in architecture and that expanding the discourse about adaptability to include continuity as well as change offers the architectural manifestation of resilience Why do some buildings last for generations as beloved and useful places while others do not How can designers today create buildings that remain useful into the future While architects and theorists have offered a wide range of ideas about building for change this book focuses on persistent architecture the material spatial and cultural processes that give rise to long lived buildings Organized in three parts this book examines material longevity in the face of constant physical and cultural change connects the dimensions of human use and contemporary program and discusses how time informs the design process Featuring dozens of interviews with people who design and use buildings and a close analysis of over a hundred historic and contemporary projects the principles of persistent architecture introduced here address urgent challenges for contemporary practice while pointing towards a more sustainable built environment in the future The Architecture of Persistence Designing for Future Use offers practitioners students and scholars a set of principles and illustrative precedents exploring architecture s unique ability to connect an instructive past a useful present and an unknown future      Geschichte der Baustatik Karl-Eugen Kurrer, 2025-11-05      Recording Historic Structures John A. grapples with the reality that it has more to worry about than fires and fog The core of the story is fairly technical rooted in the crude intuitive ways in which builders reacted to a seismic threat they could neither measure nor define But Tobriner crafts the story well SFGate      AAAS Science Book List, 1978-1986 Kathryn Wolff, Susan M.
