New Property in International Law

Jean Ho, 2024-10-04 Until now the definition of property in international law has been poorly addressed It is assumed that international law possesses sufficient content to regulate property that provisions in international instruments addressing property rights are shown to act and that resolutions of property disputes are claimed to be in accordance with international law Yet when asked to define key attributes of property in international law the legal world draws a collective blank New Property in International Law examines how international law consistently falls short when it comes to new property regulation because key stakeholders have failed to define what property is The book considers and categorises new property into three areas cultural property common property and contingent property aiming to carve out update and impart coherence to international property law By sketching the contours of new property in international law through a rigorous analytical comparison of property concepts in the Western Soviet post Soviet Chinese and Islamic juristic traditions this work enables a balanced distillation of core attributes of new property from diverse property concepts that can then be woven into a broadly acceptable and broadly applicable definition Legal Information Buyer's Guide and Reference Manual Kendall F.
