Whaley,Donna L. Wong,1985 No Child Left Behind and the Transformation of Federal Education Policy, 1965-2005 Patrick J. McGuinn,2006 Education is intimately connected to many of the most important and contentious questions confronting American society from race to jobs to taxes and the competitive pressures of the global economy have only enhanced its significance Elementary and secondary schooling has long been the province of state and local governments but when George W Bush signed into law the No Child Left Behind Act in 2002 it signaled an unprecedented expansion of the federal role in public education This book provides the first balanced in depth analysis of how No Child Left Behind NCLB became law Patrick McGuinn a political scientist with hands on experience in secondary education explains how this happened despite the country's long history of decentralized school governance and the longstanding opposition of both liberals and conservatives to an active reform oriented federal role in schools His book provides the essential political context for understanding NCLB the controversies surrounding its implementation and forthcoming debates over its reauthorization how the struggle to define the federal role in school reform took center stage in debates over the appropriate role of the government in promoting opportunity and social welfare He places the evolution of the federal role in schools within the context of broader institutional ideological and political changes that have swept the nation since the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act chronicles the concerns raised by the 1983 report A Nation at Risk and shows how education became a major campaign issue for both parties in the 1990s McGuinn argues that the emergence of swing issues such as education can facilitate major policy change even as they influence the direction of wider political debates and partisan conflict McGuinn traces the Republican shift from seeking to eliminate the U S Department of Education to embracing federal leadership in school reform then details the negotiations over NCLB the forces that shaped its final provisions and the ways in which the law constitutes a new federal education policy regime against which states have now begun to rebel and that only by understanding the unique dynamics of national education politics will reformers be able to craft a more effective national role in school reform

Theory and Research in Behavioral Pediatrics Hiram E. Fitzgerald, Barry M Lester, Michael W. Yogman, 1984 Volume I of Theory and Research in Behavioral Pediatrics focused on issues of early human development with special emphasis given to assessment of the preterm infant and to factors influencing the organization of the caregiver infant relationship Chapters in Volume 2 cover a broader range of topics and encompass a wider age span Chapter I provides a historical review of the relationship between developmental psychology and pediatrics The authors Barbara R Tinsley and Ross D Parke discuss differences between behavioral pediatrics and pediatric psychology and note that interdisciplinary collaboration in research and application has increased steadily in recent years However if similar collaborative efforts are to occur in education and training of pediatricians and developmental psychologists it will be necessary to determine just what each discipline hopes to gain from such collaborative efforts Tinsley and Parke report the results of a national survey designed to determine the areas of developmental psychology that pediatricians perceive to be of potential benefit to them in their delivery of pediatric care Results of the survey suggest that there are many ways in which developmental psychology could be incorporated into the pediatric curriculum In many respects Chapter 2 sets the stage for the remaining chapters
