Patricia Goodson's book offers weekly exercises and tools to achieve these goals. The exercises are grounded in a theoretically sound and empirically based mode comprising a set of behavioural principles, e.g., writing regularly, separating generating from editing, and specific practices, weekly exercises which ensure success. Based on the work of writing theoretician Peter Elbow, the empirical research done by Robert Boice and others on writing productivity of college professors, and the research into the practice patterns of elite performers such as Olympic athletes, the principles and practices have been developed and tested over time. Inside you'll find Exercises tailored to specific segments of academic papers and reports, Tips for ESL Writers, boxes providing additional support. This book uniquely combines these successful principles with a set of original exercises applicable to the writing needs of academics as well as students.      Academic English : Writing a research article Catherine Verguts, 2021-12-16 Are you a doctoral student or a researcher in the field of Social and Behavioural Sciences? Would you like to present your research in a well-structured and readable manner? This book shows you how to make sure your article receives the attention it deserves. Advanced Academic English: Writing a Research Article addresses the following questions: How can I acquire an academic writing style? How can I develop an elaborate and accurate academic vocabulary? How can I integrate the literature into my paper? How can I structure an introduction? How can I present my results clearly and concisely? How can I interpret and evaluate my data in relation to the problem at hand? How can I write a concise but self-explanatory abstract? You can find an answer to these questions by doing a variety of task-based and process-based learning activities such as filling in the gaps, rewriting sentences and paragraphs, and offering peer feedback. Several language focus sections deal with grammar topics related to the writing process of a research article.
