Shoes And Pattens Finds From Medieval Excavations In London:

Shoes and Pattens Francis Grew, Museum of London, Margrethe de Neergaard, 2001 Until recently very little was known about medieval shoes Glimpses in manuscript illustrations and on funerary monuments with the occasional reference by a contemporary writer was all that the costume historian had as evidence not least because leather tends to perish after prolonged contact with air and very few actual examples survived In recent years however nearly 2 000 shoes many complete and in near perfect condition have been discovered preserved on the north bank of the Thames and are now housed in the Museum of London This collection all from well dated archaeological contexts fills this vast gap in knowledge making it possible to chart precisely the progress of shoe fashion between the twelfth and fifteenth centuries Everyday Products in the Middle Ages Gitte Hansen, Steven Ashby, Irene Baug, 2015-02-05 The medieval marketplace is a familiar setting in popular and academic accounts of the Middle Ages but we actually know very little about the people involved in the transactions that took place there how their lives were influenced by those transactions or about the complex networks of individuals whose actions allowed raw materials to be extracted hewn into objects stored and ultimately shipped for market Twenty diverse case studies combine leading edge techniques and novel theoretical approaches to illuminate the identities and lives of these much overlooked ordinary people painting of a number of detailed portraits to explore the worlds of actors involved in the lives of everyday products objects of bone leather stone ceramics and base metal and their production and use in medieval northern Europe In so doing this book seeks to draw attention away from the emergent trend to return to systems and global models and restore to centre stage what should be the archaeologists most important concern the people of the past
