Company Valuation and Information in Analyst Forecasts Daniel Kreutzmann, 2010 This thesis focuses on the three primitive value drivers of each company valuation model that is based on fundamental analysis the discount rate the expected future payoffs during the explicit forecasting period and the terminal value at the end of the explicit forecasting period While the first factor is analyzed theoretically by incorporating the government into the classical valuation framework this thesis studies the other two factors by investigating forecasts made by professional investors i.e. financial analysts In the first part we show that the government's and the shareholders discount rate usually differ and analyze how the government's and shareholders different objectives lead to conflicts in the context of capital budgeting The empirical part of this thesis shows that macroeconomic information is frequently used by financial analysts when updating their earnings expectations and that target price forecasts made by financial analysts can be used to predict abnormal returns
