Eschatology and the Technological Future Michael S. Burdett, 2014-12-05 The rapid advancement of technology has led to an explosion of speculative theories about what the future of humankind may look like These technological futurisms have arisen from significant advances in the fields of nanotechnology biotechnology and information technology and are drawing growing scrutiny from the philosophical and theological communities This text seeks to contextualize the growing literature on the cultural philosophical and religious implications of technological growth by considering technological futurisms such as transhumanism in the context of the long historical tradition of technological dreaming Michael Burdett traces the latent religious sources of our contemporary technological imagination by looking at visionary approaches to technology and the future in seminal technological utopias and science fiction and draws on past theological responses to the technological future with Pierre Teilhard de Chardin and Jacques Ellul Burdett's argument arrives at a contemporary Christian response to transhumanism based around the themes of possibility and promise by turning to the works of Richard Kearney Eberhard Jüngel and Jürgen Moltmann Throughout the author highlights points of correspondence and divergence between technological futurisms and the Judeo-Christian understanding of the future

Vanderburg, 2001 This annotated bibliography introduces readers to preventive approaches for making the energy requirements of modern ways of life more sustainable Since a society can neither create nor destroy energy all energy is temporarily borrowed from the biosphere and returned to it in degraded form The activities of a way of life of a society that involve energy flows may be represented as a network for which the biosphere acts as the ultimate source and sink This network and therefore the energy basis for a modern life style will be sustainable when the biosphere can perform these roles indefinitely The present bibliography regards the preventive approaches related to energy as a capital component of preventive approaches for improving the sustainability of contemporary civilization This book as well as the two companion volumes Sustainable Production and Healthy Cities is the result of a twelve year research project carried out at the Center for Technology and Social Development at the University of Toronto The research findings led to the development of a new conceptual framework and strategy aimed at converting technological and economic growth into development that would gradually become more sustainable Healthy Cities Namir Khan, Willem H. Vanderburg, 2001 Modern cities can be designed to constitute a more supportive environment for a great many activities provide a more livable habitat and reduce the burden imposed on the biosphere They can be made healthier in terms of the definition by World Health Organization and more sustainable by means of new and emerging preventive approaches Healthy Cities focuses on those preventive approaches that can make cities healthier and more sustainable This book as well as the two companion volumes Sustainable Energy and Sustainable Production is the result of a
