Perspectives On The Human Controller:

Perspectives on the Human Controller Thomas B. Sheridan, Ton van Lunteren, 1997-03-01 Written in honor of Henk Stassen one of the most prolific contributors to this research and literature the book provides an up to date summary on human control of mechanical things This includes people controlling the mechanical movements of their own limbs extensions of their limbs such as prostheses limb replacements orthoses limb braces hand tools or telemanipulators It also consists of people controlling the mechanical movements of vehicles that they ride in such as aircraft automobiles and trains Finally it includes movements of discrete products through manufacturing plants or chemicals and other fluids through process plants such as refineries or nuclear power stations Within academe or industry these various types of human control are usually found in very different research and engineering communities The first is generally regarded as a subfield of biomechanics and more generally of biomedical engineering the hospital or medical clinic Industry has mostly ignored the challenges of prosthetics and orthotics because there is not so much money to be made payers are typically third party insurers of the government itself In contrast the problems of controlling vehicles particularly aircraft and military vehicles and industrial plants is what has driven the field of control both the science and technology In the field of robotics where biomechanics is obviously a model industry has experienced the effects of expecting too much too soon and in some cases over investing and later being forced to withdraw in disappointment

Research Handbook on Meaningful Human Control of Artificial Intelligence Systems Giulio Mecacci, Daniele Amoroso, Luciano Cavalcante Siebert, David Abbink, Jeroen van den Hoven, Filippo Santoni de Sio, 2024-07-05 This prescient Research Handbook analyses the ethical development of Artificial Intelligence systems through the prism of meaningful human control It encapsulates a multitude of disciplinary lenses including technical philosophical and legal making a crucial contribution to the ongoing discourse about control and responsibility in the field of AI

Shop Floor Control - A Systems Perspective Eric Scherer, 2012-12-06 Shop floor control and namely the problem of job shop scheduling have been fields of research for a long time However until now no comprehensive framework on the various aspects exists This book will provide a systems perspective towards shop floor control by stressing its sociotechnical and cybernetical nature It focuses on the behavioral aspects of control activities and sees the shop floor as the center of value adding manufacturing activities within an enterprise The book enables the reader to understand the interaction of organization information technology and human resources This eventually allows to achieve holistic and agile solutions and facilitates profound organizational change The book will therefore provide a welcome addition to several standard textbooks on the issue

Command and Control: The Sociotechnical Perspective Dr Daniel P Jenkins, Dr Guy H Walker, Professor Neville A Stanton, Professor Paul M Salmon, 2012-10-01 Military command and control is not merely evolving it is co evolving Technology is creating new opportunities for different types of command and control and new types of command and control are creating new aspirations for technology The question is how to manage this process

how to achieve a jointly optimised blend of socio and technical and create the kind of agility and self synchronisation that modern forms of command and control promise The answer put forward in this book is to re visit sociotechnical systems theory In doing so the problems of 21st century command and control can be approached from an alternative multi disciplinary and above all human centred perspective Human factors HF is also co evolving The traditional conception of the field is to serve as a conduit for knowledge between engineering and psychology yet 21st century command and control presents an altogether different challenge Viewing military command and control through the lens of sociotechnical theory forces us to confront difficult questions about the non linear nature of people and technology technology is changing from platform centric to network centric the interaction with that technology is changing from prescribed to exploratory and complexity is increasing from behaviour that is linear to that which is emergent The various chapters look at this transition and draw out ways in which sociotechnical systems theory can help to understand it The sociotechnical perspective reveals itself as part of a conceptual toolkit through which military command and control can be transitioned from notions of bureaucratic hierarchical ways of operating to the devolved agile self synchronising behaviour promised by modern forms of command and control like Network Enabled Capability NEC Sociotechnical system theory brings with it a sixty year legacy of practical application and this real world grounding in business process re engineering underlies the entire book An attempt has been made to bring a set of sometimes abstract but no less useful principles down to the level of easy examples design principles evaluation criteria and actionable models All of these are based on an extensive review of the current state of the art new sociotechnical NEC studies conducted by the authors and insights derived from field studies of real life command and control Time and again what emerges is a realisation that the most agile self synchronising component of all in command and control settings is the human

The Trinity of Trauma: Ignorance, Fragility, and Control Ellert

Nijenhuis, 2015-04-22 The Trinity of Trauma Ignorance Fragility and Control is structured as a trilogy This book includes the first two parts Volume I The Evolving Concept of Trauma and Volume II The Concept and Facts of Dissociation in Trauma which are predominantly conceptual theoretical and empirical in nature Volume I aims to overcome conceptual flaws that have plagued the trauma field to date It proposes new definitions of trauma and derivative concepts as well as a dimension of trauma related disorders It suggests that individuals and their environment constitute depend on and are relative to each other Volume I unites two groups of trauma related disorders that were previously contrasted in psychiatric history under various names such as melancholia versus hysteria traumatic neurosis versus traumatic hysteria and posttraumatic stress disorder versus dissociative disorders It also mends the dissociation of dissociative and conversion disorders Volume II analyzes and defines the concepts of personality self dissociation in trauma and dissociative parts It explores and documents the biopsychosocial features of different prototypical dissociative parts in traumatized individuals Important features of these parts also characterize other players in traumatization stretching from perpetrators to society at large

Community-based Control of Invasive Species Theodore Alter,Paul Martin,Don Hine,Tanya Howard,2019-06-01

Invasive species are among the greatest challenges to environmental sustainability and agricultural productivity in the world One of the most promising approaches to managing invasive species is voluntary citizen stewardship However in order for control measures to be effective private citizens often need to make sustained and sometimes burdensome commitments Community Based Control of Invasive Species is based on five years of research by leading scholars in natural resource and human behavioural sciences which involved government and citizen groups in Australia and the United States It examines questions including how can citizens be engaged in voluntarily managing invasive species what communication strategies will ensure good motivation and coordination and how can governing bodies support citizens in their efforts With chapters on institutional frameworks changing governance systems thinking organisational learning engagement communication and behavioural change this book will be a valuable reference for researchers and practitioners involved in natural resources management

Self-Control and Crime Over the Life Course Carter Hay,Ryan Meldrum,2015-02-18 What exactly is self control and what life outcomes does it affect What causes a person to have high or low self control to begin with What effect does self control have on crime and other harmful behavior Using a clear conversational writing style Self Control and Crime Over the Life Course answers critical questions about self control and its importance for understanding criminal behavior Authors Carter Hay and Ryan Meldrum use intuitive examples to draw attention to the close connection between self control and the behavioral choices people make especially in reference to criminal deviant and harmful behaviors that often carry short term benefits but long term costs The text builds an overall theoretical perspective that conveys the multi disciplinary nature of modern day self control research Moreover far from emphasizing only theoretical issues the authors place public policy at the forefront using self control research to inform policy efforts that reduce the societal costs of low self control and the behaviors it enables
