Courtright-Nash,2001      The Changing American Countryside Emery N. Castle,1995 The literature on rural America to the extent that it exists has largely been written by urban based scholars perpetuating out of date notions and stereotypes or by those who see little difference between rural and agricultural concerns As a result the real rural America remains much misunderstood neglected or ignored by scholars and policymakers alike In response Emery Castle offers The Changing American Countryside a volume that will forever change how we look at this important subject Castle brings together the writings of eminent scholars from several disciplines and varying backgrounds to take a fresh and comprehensive look at the forgotten hinterlands These authors examine the role of non metropolitan people and places in the economic life of our nation and cover such diverse issues as poverty industry the environment education family social problems ethnicity race religion gender government public policy and regional diversity The authors are especially effective in demonstrating why rural America is so much more than just agriculture It is in fact highly diverse complex and interdependent with urban America and the international market place Most major rural problems they contend simply cannot be effectively addressed in isolation from their urban and international connections To do so is misguided and even hazardous when one fourth of our population and ninety seven per cent of our land area is rural Together these writings not only provide a new and more realistic view of rural life and public policy but also suggest how the field of rural studies can greatly enrich our understanding of national life      Persp on Contemp Issues -Im ACKLEY,2005-06      Dangerous Writing Tony Scott,2009-03-15 Outlines a political economic theory of composition Connects pedagogical practices in writing classes to their broader political economic contexts and argues that the analytical power of writing is prevented from reaching its potential by pressures within the academy and without that tend to wed higher education with the aims and logics of fast capitalism Since the 1980s and the social turn in composition studies and other disciplines scholars in this field have conceived writing in college as explicitly embedded in socio rhetorical situations beyond the classroom From this conviction develops a commitment to teach writing with an emphasis on analyzing the social and political dimensions of rhetoric By focusing on the structures of labor and of institutions that enforce those structures the author finds teachers and administrators are too easily swept along with the inertia of a hyper commodified society in which students especially working class students are often positioned as commodities themselves A critique of the field of composition as much as it is a critique of capitalism From publisher description
