Walker's Enduring Studies Of Climate Variability* John Michael Wallace, 2024-12-20 The new articles and reprints in this volume document the life and scientific contributions of British physicist and applied mathematician Sir Gilbert T Walker 1868 1958 The collection bears witness to Walker s keen insights into statistically based climate prediction the nature of atmospheric variability on time scales of a year or longer and the detection and attribution of climate change Chapter authors include Joy Monteiro Timothy DelSole Richard Katz Jagadish Shukla and Ka Kit Tung Part 1 presents an overview of Walker s life and work while he was serving as Director of the India Meteorological Department from 1904 to 1924 Although he instituted many useful reforms he did not achieve his goal of producing skillful predictions of Indian summer monsoon rainfall While in India Walker began writing a series of descriptive papers based on statistical methods in which he systematically documented the structure seasonality and evolution of the principal patterns of year to year climate variability later known as teleconnection patterns on a global basis Part 2 provides an overview of Walker s work on teleconnection patterns It features a reprint of his most widely cited paper published in 1932 on his so called North Atlantic Oscillation North Pacific Oscillation and Southern Oscillation Parts 3 and 4 contain reprints of more recent papers relating to these patterns On Being Well-coordinated: A Half-century Of Research On Transition Metal Complexes John L Burmeister, Fred Basolo, 2003-10-14 This invaluable book distils the research accomplishments of Professor Fred Basolo during the five decades when he served as a world leader in the modern renaissance of inorganic chemistry Its primary focus is on the very important area of chemistry known as coordination chemistry Most of the elements in the periodic table are metals and most of the chemistry of metals involves coordination chemistry This is the case in the currently significant areas of research including organometallic homogenous catalysis biological reactions of metalloproteins and even the solid state extended structures of new materials In these systems the metals are of primary importance because they are the sites of ligand substitution or redox reactions In the solid materials the coordination number of the metal and its stereochemistry are of major importance Some fifty years of research on transition metal complexes carried out in the laboratory of Professor Basolo at Northwestern University is recorded here as selected scientific publications The book is divided into three different major research areas each dealing with some aspect of coordination chemistry In each case introductory remarks are presented which indicate what prompted the research projects and what the major accomplishments were Although the research was of the academic curiosity driven type some aspects have proven to be useful to others involved in projects that were much more applied in nature Science and Engineering Indicators (2 Vol.) John R.
