Mining for Change John Page, Finn Tarp, 2020-02-13 For a growing number of countries in Africa the discovery and exploitation of natural resources is a great opportunity but one accompanied by considerable risks. Countries dependent on oil, gas and mining have tended to have weaker long run growth, higher rates of poverty and greater income inequality than less resource abundant economies. For these resource producing economies relative prices make it more difficult to diversify into activities outside of the resource sector, limiting structural change. Mining for Change: Natural Resources and Industry in Africa presents research undertaken to understand how better management of the revenues and opportunities associated with natural resources can accelerate diversification and structural change in Africa. It begins with essays on managing the boom, the construction sector and linking industry to the major issues that frame the question of how to use natural resources for structural change. It reports the main research results for five countries: Ghana, Mozambique, Uganda, Tanzania and Zambia. Each country study covers managing the boom, the construction sector and linking industry to the resource. Mining for Change argues that good policy can make a difference and sets out ideas for policy change and widening the options for structural change. Agency in Multilingual Education Policy and Planning in Asia Syed Abdul Manan, Anas Hajar, 2025-10-13 Manan and Hajar invite experts and seasoned researchers from Asian contexts to explore the nuanced dynamics of language policy and educational practices in Asia, underscoring the importance of understanding local agency at a micro level. The chapters engage in the critical exploration of the tensions between structure and agency and spotlight the institutional constraints these micro level actors face in the enactment of multilingual education policy and planning. The contributors' chapters provide case study examples of the response of local actors towards policies at the micro level when creating potential spaces for multilingual pedagogies and possible affirmation of multilingual identities. It also provides an analysis of how and why micro level actors engage in exercise of their agency and what motives drive them towards such responses. The volume serves as a challenge to and hopes to change the normative assumptions pervasive postcolonial hierarchies and hierarchical multilingualism in favour of more egalitarian and inclusive multilingual policies and practices both within and outside the classroom. More specifically the volume shares significant developments occurring around the role of agency in negotiating the prevailing Anglophonic and Anglonormative trends and practices This book will be of value to researchers and postgraduate students working in the fields of language policy and planning multilingualism and language education Cornell University Courses of Study Cornell University,1990 Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,2000-06 Books in Print of the United Nations System United Nations.
