Representation And Processing Of Compound Words:

The Representation and Processing of Compound Words Gary Libben, Gonia Jarema, 2005-11-24 This book presents new work on the psycholinguistics and neurolinguistics of compound words. It shows the insights this work offers on natural language processing and the relation between language, mind and memory. Compounding is an easy and effective way to create and transfer meanings. By building new lexical items based on the meanings of existing items, compounds can usually be understood on first presentation though as say breadboard, cardboard, cupboard and sandwich board show the rules governing the relations between the components, meanings are not always straightforward. Compound words are segmentable into their constituent morphemes in much the same way as sentences can be divided into their constituent words; children and adults would not otherwise find them interpretable. But compound sequences may also be independent lexical items that can be retrieved for production as single entities and whose idiosyncratic meanings are stored in the mind. Compound words reflect the properties both of linguistic representation in the mind and of grammatical processing. They thus offer opportunities for investigating key aspects of the mental operations involved in language, for example the interplay between storage and computation, the manner in which morphological and semantic factors impact on the nature of storage and the way the mind's computational processes serve on-line language comprehension and production. This book explores the nature of these opportunities, assesses what is known and considers what may yet be discovered and how. Das Deutsche als kompositionsfreudige Sprache Livio Gaeta, Barbara Schlücker, 2012-02-22 Die Komposition nimmt eine zentrale Position in der Wortbildung nicht nur der germanischen Sprachen ein und gilt insbesondere im Deutschen als hochproduktives Wortbildungsmuster. Trotz der Fülle an Literatur zur Komposition im Allgemeinen stellt jedoch eine umfassende Auseinandersetzung und Darstellung der Komposition im Deutschen in der aktuellen Forschung ein Desiderat dar, auch innerhalb der deutschsprachigen Germanistik. Im Anschluss an frühere Untersuchungen ergeben sich heute aus einzel- und bereinzelsprachlicher Perspektive neue Untersuchungsaspekte, die nicht zuletzt auch aus aktuellen methodologischen Untersuchungsmöglichkeiten und Fragestellungen erwachsen, beispielsweise im Bereich der Korpuslinguistik und der Psycholinguistik. Der Band nimmt die Komposition im Deutschen aus unterschiedlichen Perspektiven in den Blick und möchte so dazu beitragen, diese Lücke zu füllen. Die Beiträge diskutieren sowohl Fragen, die sich aus einer innersprachlichen strukturellen Perspektive ergeben, als auch weitergehende systembezogene Aspekte der Komposition im Deutschen. Dazu gehören u.a. die Abgrenzung der Komposition von anderen Wortbildungsprozessen und von syntaktischen Prozessen, Überlegungen zur Struktur und Interpretation der zugrunde liegenden morphologischen Einheiten und ihrer Repräsentation im mentalen Lexikon sowie auch die graphematische Dimension der Kompositionsforschung und Fragen, die sich aus aktuellen Entwicklungen auf dem Gebiet der Textlinguistik und Diskurstheorie ergeben.
