the social construction of politics affects the recipients of the policies and the public in general They call attention to how policies reinforce negative stereotypes of some groups such as welfare recipients and often lead to political alienation and withdrawal In addition they discuss how policies using clinical reason a term borrowed from medicine and used as a way to classify people are increasingly applied to nonmedical situations such as domestic violence to restrict individual power and legitimacy The authors argue that much needs to be done by the government itself to improve policy design and empower all citizens to participate in the democratic process They identify concrete strategies for policymakers to enhance the role of citizens without sacrificing program effectiveness
