Practical Stereology:

Practical Stereology John C. Russ, Robert T. DeHoff, 2000-01-01 Stereology is the science that relates three dimensional structure to the two dimensional images that can be measured The most common field of application is in microscopy both of man made materials metals ceramics composites etc and of biological tissue samples This book covers the applications and terminology of both fields Recent emphasis in stereology is concerned with sampling strategies to avoid bias due to directionality and non uniformity and these methods are fully covered So are the classic techniques that measure size distributions surface curvature etc which are widely useful but not discussed in other recent texts Finally most stereology is taught as manual procedures using counting and grids but this text also covers the use of modern desktop computers for image analysis and processing to obtain and interpret the stereological data
