Pragmatism In The Age Of Jihad The Precolonial State Of Bundu:

Pragmatism in the Age of Jihad Michael A. Gomez, Michael Gomez, 2002-07-04 Bundu was an anomaly among the precolonial Muslim states of West Africa Founded during the jihads which swept the savannah in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries it developed a pragmatic policy unique in the midst of fundamentalist theocratic Muslim states Located in the Upper Senegal and with access to the Upper Gambia Bundu played a critical role in regional commerce and production and reacted quickly to the stimulus of European trade Drawing upon a wide range of sources both oral and documentary Arabic English and French Dr Gomez provides the first full account of Bundu s history He analyses the foundation and growth of an Islamic state at a crossroads between the Saharan and trans Atlantic trade paying particular attention to the relationship between Islamic thought and court policy and to the state s response to militant Islam in the early nineteenth century

Slavery and Colonial Rule in Africa Martin A. Klein, Suzanne Miers, 2013-05-13 This book brings together a series of new case studies some by young scholars others by widely published authors All are based on original research and designed to enhance our understanding of the process of the abolition of slavery in Africa at the grass roots level Part of the studies are on new areas of interest such as the German colonies and the Algerian Sahara Others throw new light on questions already debated such as emancipation of the Gold Coast Some focus on the impact of abolition on particular groups of slaves such as the royal slaves in Nigeria and concubines in Morocco Among the themes considered is the role of slaves in their own emancipation the short and long term results of abolition the role of the League of Nations and the vestiges of slavery in Africa today

American Journal of Islamic Social Sciences 13:1 John Obert Voll, Suroosh Igani, Chandra Muzaffar, Abdelwahab M. Antebellum Slave Narratives Jermaine O. Archer, 2009-01-13 Though America experienced an increase in a native born population and an emerging African American identity throughout the nineteenth century African culture did not necessarily dissipate with each passing decade Archer examines the slave narratives of four key members of the abolitionist movement Frederick Douglass William Wells Brown Harriet Tubman and Harriet Jacobs revealing how these highly visible proponents of the antislavery cause were able to creatively engage and at times overcome the cultural biases of their listening and reading audiences When engaged in public sphere discourses these individuals were not as some scholars have suggested inclined to accept unconditionally stereotypical constructions of their own identities Rather they were quite skillful in negotiating between their affinity with antislavery Christianity and their own intimate involvement with slave circle dance and improvisational song burial rites conjuration divination folk medicinal practices

African dialects and African inspired festivals The authors emerge as more complex figures than scholars have imagined Their political views though sometimes moderate often reflected a strong desire to strike a fierce blow at the core of the slavocracy

Muslim Societies in Africa Roman Loimeier, 2013-07-17 Muslim Societies in Africa provides a concise overview of Muslim societies in Africa in light of their role in African history and the history of the Islamic world Roman Loimeier identifies patterns and peculiarities in the historical social economic and political development of Africa and addresses the impact of Islam over the longue dur e To understand the movements of peoples and how they came into contact Loimeier considers geography ecology and climate as well as religious conversion trade and slavery This comprehensive history offers a balanced view of the complexities of the African Muslim past while looking toward Africa s future role in the globalized Muslim world
