Rivals In Practice Medical Romance:

Rivals In Practice (Mills & Boon Medical) Alison Roberts, 2016-06-15 When a storm throws a rural New Zealand town into chaos Dr Jennifer Tremaine's professional prowess is put under pressure

Romance's Rival Talia Schaffer, 2016-01-05 Romance's Rival argues that the central plot of the most important genre of the nineteenth century the marriage plot novel means something quite different from what we thought In Victorian novels women may marry for erotic desire but they might instead insist on familiar marriage marrying trustworthy companions who can offer them socially rich lives and futures of meaningful work Romance's Rival shows how familiar marriage expresses ideas of female subjectivity dating back through the seventeenth century while romantic marriage felt like a new risky idea Undertaking a major rereading of the rise of the novel tradition from Richardson through the twentieth century Talia Schaffer rethinks what the novel meant if one tracks familiar marriage virtues This alternative perspective offers new readings of major texts Austen the Brontës Eliot Trollope but it also foregrounds women's popular fiction Yonge Oliphant Craik Broughton Offering a feminist perspective that reads the marriage plot from the woman's point of view Schaffer inquires why a female character might legitimately wish to marry for something other than passion For the past half century scholars have valorized desire individuality and autonomy in the way we read novels Romance's Rival asks us to look at the other side to validate the yearning for work family company or social power as legitimate reasons for women's marital choices in Victorian fiction Comprehensive in its knowledge of several generations of scholarship on the novel Romance's Rival convinces us to re-examine assumptions about the nature and function of marriage and the role of the novel in helping us not simply imagine marriage but also process changing ideas about what it might look like and how it might serve people

Medical Women and Victorian Fiction Kristine Swenson, 2005 In Medical Women and Victorian Fiction Kristine Swenson explores the cultural intersections of fiction feminism and medicine during the second half of the nineteenth century in Britain and her colonies by looking at the complex and reciprocal relationship between women and medicine in Victorian culture Her examination centers around two distinct though related figures the Nightingale nurse and the New Woman doctor The medical women in the fiction of Elizabeth Gaskell Ruth Wilkie Collins The Woman in White Dr Margaret Todd Mona McLean Medical Student Hilda Gregg Peace with Honour and others are analyzed in relation to nonfictional discussions of nurses and women doctors in medical publications nursing tracts feminist histories and newspapers Victorian anxieties over sexuality disease and moral corruption came together most persistently around the figure of a prostitute However Swenson takes as her focus for this volume an opposing figure the medical woman whom Victorians deployed to combat these social ills As symbols of traditional female morality informed and transformed by the new social and medical sciences representations of medical women influenced public debate surrounding women's education and employment the Contagious Diseases Acts and the health of the empire At the same time the presence of these educated independent women who received payment for performing tasks traditionally assigned to domestic women or servants inevitably altered the meaning of womanhood and the positions of other women in Victorian culture Swenson challenges more conventional histories of the rise of the actual nurse and the woman doctor by treating as equally important the development of cultural representations of these figures International Record of Medicine and General Practice Clinics Edward Swift Dunster, James Bradbridge Hunter, Frank Pierce Foster, Charles Eucharist de Medicis Sajous, Gregory Stragnell, Henry J.
