Reformation Heinrich Boehmer,1946 Road-Map to Consciousness Roshan M Sharma,2018-05-14 On the path of experiencing consciousness you pick an unknown territory On the path to consciousness you don t find anything familiar Every step you take has no relevance from the past Every experience remains fresh for you You have to stay open to different experiences of life A whole new world opens for you on the path of consciousness The world that you might have heard in scriptures but never experienced for the self The way to the consciousness is through the subtle world The physical world you are already experiencing outside while the subtle world exists inside The path to consciousness brings you closer to the experience of truth The mind deceives you in as many ways possible but when you get on the path of experiencing the truth all the illusions or delusions of the mind wither away and you experience an altogether a new reality for yourself The things of the mind keep you separate from the actual reality of life It s only when you consciously live your daily life putting the things of the mind behind you experience life from a different perspective Life is possible without mind To experience consciousness and to create life out of consciousness you have to connect with the life of the moment The mind keeps you engaged into the external reality but you have to consciously direct your mind inward and spend some time each day to know your inner world It s only by connecting and knowing the inner world you reach to the truth of life Your daily life is based on your perception and your perception depends on the memories of the mind The path of consciousness takes you to the state of mind where you can experience life dropping all the individual perceptions of the mind The life at the level of the mind keeps you limited to your own world but with the consciousness you experience life as a whole The life with consciousness is living a reality You come out of your mind and connect with the life that is happening here and now Life is positive but only when you experience it at the moment All the pain suffering and negativity are experienced by moving away from the moment The time you consciously connect with the life of the moment you start experiencing positivity of life The experience of consciousness connects you with the higher intelligence You connect with the knowing Knowing which not knowledge rather knowing is directly looking into life With the knowing you don t think and evaluate your life rather you directly see the truth of life With the consciousness you connect with the knowing No information or knowledge Simply knowing which is directly experiencing life The Road to Ayodhya Jay Dubashi,1992 Living with the Future in Mind ,2000
