Power And Need In Africa:

Power and Need in Africa Ben Wisner, 1988 This book is the indirect result of more than twenty years of work in Eastern and Southern Africa That work began with the half baked construction of a small dam a village grain store that fell down a few years later and many nights of enthusiastic discussion of the Arusha Declaration in a Tanzanian ujamaa village Ben Wisner makes an impassioned case for giving the poor of Africa the means to develop their own future He shows how a new African renaissance could spring from a radical basic needs approach A renaissance which has as its constituent elements environmental sustainability women s emancipation and social justice will stand as the living refutation of the new conservative pragmatism so fashionable among development experts now Africa's Infrastructure World

Bank, 2009-12-01 Sustainable infrastructure development is vital for Africa s prosperity And now is the time to begin the transformation This volume is the culmination of an unprecedented effort to document analyze and interpret the full extent of the challenge in developing Sub Saharan Africa s infrastructure sectors As a result it represents the most comprehensive reference currently available on infrastructure in the region The book covers the five main economic infrastructure sectors information and communication technology irrigation power transport and water and sanitation Africa s Infrastructure A Time for Transformation reflects the collaboration of a wide array of African regional institutions and development partners under the auspices of the Infrastructure Consortium for Africa It presents the findings of the Africa Infrastructure Country Diagnostic AICD a project launched following a commitment in 2005 by the international community after the G8 summit at Gleneagles Scotland to scale up financial support for infrastructure development in Africa The lack of reliable information in this area made it difficult to evaluate the success of past interventions prioritize current allocations and provide benchmarks for measuring future progress hence the need for the AICD Africa s infrastructure sectors lag well behind those of the rest of the world and the gap is widening Some of the main policy relevant findings highlighted in the book include the following infrastructure in the region is exceptionally expensive with tariffs being many times higher than those found elsewhere Inadequate and expensive infrastructure is retarding growth by 2 percentage points each year Solving the problem will cost over US 90 billion per year which is more than twice what is being spent in Africa today However money alone is not the answer Prudent policies wise management and sound maintenance can improve efficiency thereby stretching the infrastructure dollar There is the potential to recover an additional US 17 billion a year from within the existing infrastructure resource envelope simply by improving efficiency For example improved revenue collection and utility management could generate US 3.3 billion per year Regional power trade could reduce annual costs by US 2 billion And deregulating the trucking industry could reduce freight costs by one half So raising more funds without also tackling inefficiencies would be like pouring water into a leaking bucket Finally the power sector and fragile states represent particular challenges Even if every efficiency in every infrastructure sector could be captured a substantial funding gap of 31

billion a year would remain Nevertheless the African people and economies cannot wait any longer Now is the time to begin the transformation to sustainable development

Energy and Transport in Green Transition Atle Midttun, Nina Witoszek, 2015-06-26 This book breaks new ground in the studies of green transition It frames the ongoing transformation in terms of a battle of modernities with the emerging vision of ecomodernity as the final destination It also offers a systematic exploration of the potential for extensive transformation of carbon intensive sectors with a focus on energy and transport towards a low or post carbon economy The book does so in a comparative perspective by pointing to a diversity of techno economic and institutional solutions in the mature Western economies and in the rapidly growing East and developing South The contributors highlight a broad spectrum of available alternatives as well as illuminate conflicting interests involved They also demonstrate how solutions to the climate challenge require parallel technological and governance innovation The book advocates a new overarching vision and agenda of ecomodernity based on a synergistic paradigm shift in industry politics and culture to trigger and sustain the ecological innovation necessary to tip development in a green direction This vision cannot be monolithic rather it should reflect the diverse interests and conditions of the global population This book is aimed at researchers and postgraduate students of energy transport environmental and climate policies as well as development environment innovation and sustainability

Ending Africa's Energy Deficit and the Law Yinka Omorogbe, Ada Ordor, 2018-02-22 With the inclusion of access to energy in the sustainable development goals the role of energy to human existence was finally recognized Yet in Africa this achievement is far from realized Omorogbe and Ordor bring together experts in their fields to ask what is stalling progress examining problems from institutions catering to vested interests at the continent's expense to a need to develop vigorous financial and fiscal frameworks The ramifications and complications of energy law are labyrinthine this volume discusses how energy deficits can burden disabled people women and children in excess of their more fortunate counterparts as well as considering environmental issues including the delicate balance between the necessity of water for drinking and cleaning and the use of water in industrial processes A pivotal work of scholarship the book poses pressing questions for energy law and international human rights
