Sinclair, 2014-04-08 In The New Masters of Capital Timothy J Sinclair examines a key aspect of the global economy the rating agencies In the global economy trust is formalized in the daily operations of such firms as Moody's and Standard Poor's which continuously monitor the financial health of bond issuers ranging from private corporations to local and national governments Their judgments affect unimaginably large sums approximately 30 trillion in outstanding debt issues according to a recent Moody's estimate The difference between an AA and a BB rating may cost millions of dollars in interest payments or determine if a corporation or government can even issue bonds Without bond rating agencies there would be no standard means to compare risks in the global economy and international investment would be problematic Most observers assume that the agencies are neutral and scientific and that they interpret their role in narrowly economic terms But these agencies by their nature wield extraordinary power and exert massive influence over public policy Sinclair offers a highly accessible account of these institutions their origins and the rating processes they use to Neubeck,Mary Alice Neubeck,Davita Silfen Glasberg,2006-04-06 This critical approach to the analysis of social problems facing the world today examines both the causes of those problems and their human implications The fifth edition has been reorganized into four types of social problems Four chapters look at large societal problems involving arrangements of social structures that have a vast impact how societies operate and the effect of this on the life chances of millions of people five chapters focus on group problems created by social arrangements and relations four chapters focus on institutional problems that derive from the way that social institutions are arranged to address the basic needs of social survival that often benefit some members of society more than others and the final three chapters focus on individual problems such as criminal behavior mental illness and substance abuse Human Rights in Our Own Backyard: Injustice and Resistance in the United States William T. Armaline,Bandana Purkayastha,Davita Silfen Glasberg,2011 Most Americans assume that the United States provides a gold standard for human rights a 2007 survey found that 80 percent of U S adults believed that the U S does a better job than most countries when it comes to protecting human rights As well discussions among scholars and public officials in the United States frame human rights issues as concerning people policies or practices over there By contrast the contributors to this volume argue that many of the greatest immediate and structural threats to human rights and some of the most significant efforts to realize human rights in practice can be found in our own backyard Human Rights in Our Own Backyard examines the state of human rights and responses to human rights issues drawing on sociological literature and perspectives to interrogate assumptions of American exceptionalism How do people in the U S address human rights issues What strategies have they adopted and how successful have they been Essays are organized around key conventions of human rights focusing on the relationships between human rights and justice the state and the individual civil rights and human rights and group rights versus individual rights The contributors are united by a common conception of the human rights enterprise as a process involving not only state defined and implemented rights but also human rights from below as promoted by activists Provided by publisher
