Powers In Media Policy The Challenge Of The European Parliament:

Powers in Media Policy Katharine Sarikakis, 2004 Contrary to widespread rhetoric of deregulation the media are objects of increased global policy Generators of cultural spheres within which social consensus is formed the media are shaped by national and supranational agencies of questionable legitimacy Policy delineates the form and content of global communications impinging on cultures discourses and consciousness yet citizen representation in processes of policy making remains fragmentary In this insightful study the author examines the role of the European Parliament as the only international organisation directly accountable to and elected by citizens in the formation of media policy This critical account of supranational representation identifies the structural and ideological dynamics of powers in European media policy Through detailed examination of major policies the author demonstrates the conditions under which supranational representation can offer a resisting force to unaccountable global powers and the ways in which it can contribute to system transformation and defend communication spaces

The European Union and the Culture Industries David Ward, 2016-02-17 This edited collection brings together leading academics in their respective fields to examine the European Union's impact on media and public policy It provides an analysis of the broader areas of EU policy and links these together to give a greater appreciation of the nuances and scope of EU regulatory initiatives and their impact on the member states Under a broad public interest perspective the authors provide an assessment of the success of EU policy in protecting the public interest in the culture industries and respecting certain normative principles and balancing these with market dynamics

Children in the Online World Elisabeth Staksrud, 2016-05-23 What is online risk How can we best protect children from it Who should be responsible for this protection Is all protection good Can Internet users trust the industry These and other fundamental questions are discussed in this book Beginning with the premise that the political and democratic processes in a society are affected by the way in which that society defines and perceives risks Children in the Online World offers insights into the contemporary regulation of online risk for children including teens examining the questions of whether such regulation is legitimate and whether it does in fact result in the sacrifice of certain fundamental human rights The book draws on representative studies with European children concerning their actual online risk experiences as well as an extensive review of regulatory rationales in the European Union to contend that the institutions of the western European welfare states charged with protecting children have changed fundamentally at the cost of the level of security that they provide In consequence children at once have more rights with regard to their personal decision making as digital consumers yet fewer democratic rights to participation and protection as digital citizens A theoretically informed yet empirically grounded study of the relationship between core democratic values and the duty to protect young people in the media sphere Children in the Online World will appeal to scholars and students across the social sciences with interests in new technologies risk and the sociology of childhood and youth Book The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorandfrancis.com>

Fundamental Rights in EU Internal Market Legislation Vasiliki Kosta, 2015-11-05 This book attempts to systematise the present interrelationship between fundamental rights and the EU internal market in the field of positive integration. Its intention is simple to examine the way in which and the extent to which fundamental rights protection is realised through EU internal market legislation. To that end the analysis is conducted around four rights or sets of rights: data protection, freedom of expression, fundamental labour rights and the right to health. The book assesses not only what substantive level of protection is achieved for these fundamental rights but it also estimates whether there is a fundamental rights culture that informs current legislative practice. Finally it asks the overarching question whether the current state of harmonisation amounts to a fundamental rights policy. The book offers a much more varied picture of the EU's fundamental rights policy in and through the EU internal market than perhaps initially expected. Moreover it builds the case for a more conscious approach to dealing with and enhancing fundamental rights protection in and through internal market legislation and advocates a leading role for the legislature in the establishment of an internal market that is firmly based on respect for fundamental rights.

The 2009 Elections to the European Parliament Juliet Lodge, 2010-09-17 An analysis of the 2009 European elections in each of the 27 member states of the newly enlarged European Union and assessment of the European Parliament in 2004-2009. This book looks at the implications of low turnout for the future of European Union democracy and accountability.

Media and Convergence Management Sandra Diehl, Matthias Karmasin, 2013-05-24 Convergence has gained an enormous amount of attention in media studies within the last several years. It is used to describe the merging of formerly distinct functions, markets and fields of application which has changed the way companies operate and consumers perceive and process media content. These transformations have not only led business practices to change and required companies to adapt to new conditions, they also continue to have a lasting impact on research in this area. This book's main purpose is to shed some light on crucial phenomena of media and convergence management while also addressing more specific issues brought about by innovations related to media technologies, industries, business models, consumer behavior and content management. This book gathers insights from renowned academic researchers and pursues a highly interdisciplinary approach. It will serve as a valuable reference guide for students, practitioners and researchers interested in media convergence processes.

Reclaiming the Media Bart Cammaerts, Nico Carpentier, 2007 Against the claims of increasing sexualisation of culture, one truism is constantly rehearsed that women have little taste for pornography. This book offers an understanding of women's pleasures in sexually explicit materials by focusing on the production and consumption of For Women magazine.

The Media Were American Jeremy Tunstall, 2008 It has become clear that the U S media are no longer increasingly their grip throughout the globe Asia and the Arab Moslem world is virtually saturated with their own national media output Tunstall produces a well written provocative snapshot at global media today His point of view is relentlessly global he considers the role of the media in the collapse of the Soviet Union the ascendance of the Brazilian and Mexican soap opera the increasing strength of Bollywood the national cinema output of India as well as the relative decline in influence of US media Importantly Tunstall focuses on both the nation state and the geographical and cultural region as crucial levels in today's mass media Both the United States and the US mass media have now lost their previous moral leadership Lone American control of the world news flow has ceased today rather than Global media we see a world media system comprised of interlocking national regional cultural systems Tunstall's assessment is a wake up call for insular American media consumers

EU Policy Responses to a Shifting Multilateral System Esther Barbé, Oriol Costa, Robert Kissack, 2016-09-27 This book explores how the EU as an international actor is adapting to recent transformations in the multilateral system The international identity of the European Union is built upon its support for effective multilateralism and its commitment to core norms and values Until recently there was no need to choose between these goals Emerging powers in the international system are not only demanding more power in multilateral institutions but also sometimes seeking to influence their purpose and function away from those championed by the EU This presents a dilemma for EU foreign policy framed in this edited volume as either accommodating changes in order to support multilateral institutions or entrenching the EU position in order to uphold values Using a common analytical framework the chapters include case studies on important multilateral institutions such as the United Nations Security Council the International Monetary Fund the World Trade Organization and the International Criminal Court as well as key policy areas such as energy climate change nuclear non proliferation and human rights

Global Communications Paula Chakravartty, Yuezhi Zhao, 2008 This provocative book takes a new approach toward understanding the uneven flows of global communications Rather than guiding its discussion by geography types of media or traditional separations of power and resistance Global Communications examines political economic power and communication in relation to historically specific encounters with modernity It underscores lived experiences in its approach to globalization showing that the state and the market can both be sites of empowerment just as civil society might also be a site of repression Taking a political economic analysis of communication and culture this dynamic group of international authors looks beyond developments in the North American information and culture industries to map new forms of citizenship and exclusion The chapters spotlight China Ghana India Japan Palestine Russia Singapore and Venezuela and foreground the transnational formations of the European Union the pan Arab and Spanish speaking markets and civil society actors in sub Saharan Africa the Middle East and North America Theoretically driven and empirically grounded Global Communications defines communication broadly to include production circulation and consumption and addresses urgent questions about the inequalities of globalization and the possibilities of hybrid
