Touched by Fire Elliott Leyton, 1998 When the rapes and massacres the plagues the famines the floods or the droughts erupt in far off places the world stands still MSF does not They are the smoke jumpers among international aid organizations While others are often stymied or delayed by bureaucratic red tape the men and women of Doctors Without Borders Medecins Sans Frontieres or MSF move in They provide food and clean water They dig latrines They set up first aid stations and field hospitals They treat all comers according to need Often they are the last to remain in situations abandoned by others as too dangerous The risks they take are moral and ethical as well as mortal They are acutely aware that giving aid is controversial Does it really do any good to save a child from murder one day when it will probably starve in the weeks ahead Is it appropriate to bring expensive western medicine into a country that in the long run can't afford it Should relief be given to civilians who are being starved on purpose as part of a cynical political game by a local warlord Elliot Leyton and Greg Locke saw something of the implications of these and other questions when they travelled to Rwanda in the fall of 1996 There they found themselves plunged into a humanitarian crisis of epic proportions Hundreds of thousands of people were on the move Armed militias and hostile armies lurked in the background Mass starvation plague and an eruption into civil or criminal violence were immediate possibilities The two Canadians one an internationally recognized expert on the psychology of killing the other an experienced photo journalist had a rare opportunity to observe MSF in action at a timewhen the stress was enormous and its resources were stretched to the limit They watched and listened to the perpetrators of violence and their victims to the survivors and those who gave them assistance and above all to the people of MSF who dedicate themselves to saving lives because in the words of one MSFer The world can afford a humanitarian ideal The result of Leyton and Locke's research is an extraordinary written and visual record of small miracles performed in the midst of catastrophe
