Planning Development With Women Making A World Of Difference:

Planning Development with Women Kate Young, 1993 Presents an overview of women in development during the three UN Development Decades from 1960 to 1990 Includes case studies of women farmers in Africa industrial workers in manufacturing for export in Asia and informal sector workers in Latin America Entwicklungstheorie Bianca Többe Gonçalves, 2005 Entwicklungsethische Konkretionen Hartmut Köss, 2002 Entwicklung Manfred Schulz, 2013-07-02 Der entwicklungssoziologische Diskurs steckt derzeit in einer Krise Die Realität kennt widersprüchliche Tendenzen d.h. Globalisierung der Weltmärkte mit Auswirkungen auch auf die Bereiche Politik und Kultur einerseits und andererseits eine wachsende Differenzierung und Heterogenisierung der Entwicklungsgesellschaften Die theoretischen Interpretationsschemata zur Erklärung dieser Prozesse sind brüchig was auch für die seit einigen Jahren wiederauferstandene Modernisierungstheorie gilt Die vorliegende Studie beginnt mit einer historisch orientierten Entfaltung des soziologischen Entwicklungsbegriffes der sowohl deskriptiv analytische als auch normative Elemente enthält Im zweiten Abschnitt wird die Entwicklung von Märkten Staat und Gesellschaft in den Weltregionen Asien Lateinamerika und Afrika dargestellt Das in den Entwicklungswissenschaften erst seit kurzem verwandte Konzept der Steuerungsmodi Macht Geld Solidarität strukturiert Abschnitt III des Bandes in dem es um das Aufkommen von Zivilgesellschaft und handlungskompetenten Akteuren geht Abschnitt VI behandelt aus einer ethno soziologischen Perspektive den Zusammenhang von Kultur und Entwicklung Schließlich werden neuere soziologisch orientierte Entwicklungsstrategien insbesondere die nachhaltige Entwicklung vorgestellt Der abschließende Beitrag beleuchtet die aktuelle wissenschaftstheoretische Position der Entwicklungssoziologie und zeigt Verbindungslinien zur allgemeinen Soziologie insbesondere zu Konzepten des sozialen Wandels auf Handbook of Global Environmental Policy and Administration Dennis Soden, Brent R. Steel, 1999-07-16 Presenting case studies involving Rwanda Nepal Australia Japan and Mexico including real time policy and administrative questions this versatile reference text provides a wide perspective on national and international environmental problems and policies featuring discussions with a regional emphasis as well as global significance Pooling the work of over 60 international contributors in disciplines ranging from anthropology to political science the Handbook of Global Environmental Policy and Administration illustrates how environmental concerns are incorporated into administrative functions and policy processes What Makes Women Sick Lesley Doyal, 1995-06-19 Lesley Doyal draws on a wide range of disciplines to highlight the limitations of medical models in understanding global patterns of health and disease in women Examining in detail the impact of sexuality fertility control reproduction domestic labour and waged work on women's well being she shows how gender divisions in economic and social life affect their experiences of illness disability and mortality A concluding chapter illustrates the multiplicity of ways in which women around the world are challenging the threats to their health The Oxfam Gender Training Manual Suzanne Williams, 1994 This comprehensive approach to gender training in development encompasses work on gender awareness raising and gender analysis at the individual community and global level An important reference source for development agency trainers and academics Prokla ,1999 Economic and Political Weekly ,1998-04 Women and Empowerment Marilee Karl,1995 The empowerment of women by their increased participation in all aspects of political social and economic life has become one of the major goals of democratic and participatory movements as well as women s organizations throughout the world This book examines the vital interaction of women s increasing participation decision making and empowerment Marilee Karl also examines the legal economic and social obstacles faced by women around the world She provides vivid examples of women responding to those challenges Beyond offering an understanding of what participation and empowerment are and can be this book seeks to promote women s participation whether at the grassroots or at national and international levels The book looks at the growing involvement of women in different organizations politics and public life development programmes and international decision making It outlines the strategies mechanisms and tools that women are using for their empowerment and explains new priorities and perspectives that women are bringing to today s key issues Gender im Mainstreaming Regina Frey,2003 Social Science Review ,2002-06 The Land and People of the Mambilla Plateau A. L. Tukur,Abel A. Adebayo,Mala Galtima,2005 Microfinance, Rural Livelihoods, and Women's Empowerment in Uganda Alfred Lakwo,2006 Advancing Women's Status Maria de Bruyn,1995 Extrait de la couverture This publication focuses on gender relations namely the social economic political and legal roles of women and men in society The appearance of this book coincides with the Fourth World Conference on Women held in Beijing China during September 1995 Four of the main themes of the conference are considered from a gender perspective women s status and rights education and training economic participation and sexual and reproductive health Each of these four state of the art reviews is accompanied by an annotated bibliography providing the reader with an introduction to key literature concerned with developing countries As in all parts of the world these themes are extremely topical Debates about women s status and rights for example are debates about gender and therefore about the fabric of society in addition to being debates about women New Books on Women and Feminism ,1993 The Administrator ,1995 Links Between Gendered Division of Labor and Land Use in Oloitokitok Division, S.E Kajiado District, Kenya Elizabeth Edna Wangui,2004 Pastoral production systems have been undergoing endogenously and exogenously driven change in recent years One predominant change in pastoral production systems involves a shift from pure pastoralism to an integration of crop and livestock production In this study I explore the impact of one such livelihood and land use shift on gender roles and relations among the Ilkisongo Maasai of Oloitokitok Division in Southeast Kajiado District Kenya My research uses the feminist political ecology theoretical frameworks to investigate how gender roles and relations are related to land use patterns and how land use and gender roles and relations vary along the Mt Kilimanjaro ecological gradient I collected data using a variety of methods and at various scales The land use and land cover maps were from secondary sources and they had been analyzed from Landsat MSS Landsat TM and SPOT imagery Data on cropping patterns labor allocation and intra household labor negotiations were collected from men and women in household interviews key informant interviews group meetings and through participant observation Irrigated and rain fed farming have expanded at the expense of grazing areas in the study area Crops are increasingly grown for sale Livestock kept and patterns of animal husbandry have also changed In irrigated areas men contribute most of the labor used in crop production Women contribute most of the labor required for livestock production in all the agro ecological zones Forces of change include structural adjustment policies the national land reform ecological conditions and a variety of social and political factors Patterns of labor negotiation display both cooperation and conflict within the households I also found gendered patterns of landscape use in both crop and livestock production in Oloitokitok Division In this study I argue for the re inclusion of men in gender analysis I contribute to the recent literature on masculinities by illustrating the role that men play in crop production in an agro pastoral community My findings also contribute to the literature on gender and pastoralism by arguing for the recognition of the importance of women in pastoral communities By including both men and women and investigating their relations within the crop and livestock production process I have made a contribution to the feminist political ecology theoretical framework I make a second contribution to feminist political ecology through a discussion on the gendered landscapes of cropping grazing conflict and marketing My third contribution to feminist political ecology is through the investigation of the processes of cooperation and conflict and how these change as livelihoods change My results have important implications for policy in agriculture and natural resource management Crop cultivation and livestock rearing need to be understood in the context of their gendered labor requirements Both men and women need to be engaged from the planning stages of agricultural development projects Natural resource management projects need to be understood as land uses that compete for land and labor with relatively more profitable land uses such as crop and livestock production In this study I also explore the implications that the results have for other pastoral societies in Eastern Africa International Social Science Journal ,2005
