Fernando Ferroni, Leonida Antonio Gizzi, Riccardo Faccini, 2012 Impressive progress has been made in the field of laser plasma acceleration in the last decade with outstanding achievements from both experimental and theoretical viewpoints. Closely exploiting the development of ultra intense ultrashort pulse lasers laser plasma acceleration has developed rapidly achieving accelerating gradients of the order of tens of GeV/m and making the prospect of miniature accelerators a more realistic possibility. This book presents the lectures delivered at the Enrico Fermi International School of Physics and summer school Laser Plasma Acceleration held in Varenna Italy in June 2011 ACCELERATION OF PLASMAS BY INDUCTIVELY GENERATED ELECTROMAGNETIC FIELDS. David Burke Miller, 1961 Soviet Journal of Plasma Physics ,1983 Investigation of Staged Laser-Plasma Acceleration Satomi Shiraishi, 2014-07-10 This thesis establishes an exciting new beginning for Laser Plasma Accelerators (LPAs) to further develop toward the next generation of compact high energy accelerators. Design, installation and commissioning of a new experimental setup at LBNL played an important role and are detailed through three critical components: e beam production, reflection of laser pulses with a plasma mirror and large wake excitation below electron injection threshold. Pulses from a 40 TW peak power laser system were split into a 25 TW pulse and a 15 TW pulse. The first pulse was used for e beam production in the first module and the second pulse was used for wake excitation in the second module to post accelerate the e beam. As a result, reliable e beam production and efficient wake excitation necessary for the staged acceleration were independently demonstrated. These experiments have laid the foundation for future staging experiments at the 40 TW peak power level International Aerospace Abstracts ,1996 INIS Atomindex ,1987 Studies of Proton Driven Plasma Wakefield Acceleration Yangmei Li, 2020-07-15 This thesis focuses on a cutting edge area of research which is aligned with CERN's mainstream research: the AWAKE project dedicated to proving the capability of accelerating particles to the energy frontier by the high energy proton beam. The author participated in this project and has advanced the plasma wakefield theory and modelling significantly, especially concerning future plasma acceleration based collider design. The thesis addresses electron beam acceleration to high energy whilst preserving its high quality driven by a single short proton bunch in hollow plasma. It also demonstrates stable deceleration of multiple proton bunches in a nonlinear regime with strong resonant wakefield excitation in hollow plasma and generation of high energy and high quality electron or positron bunches. Further work includes the assessment of transverse instabilities induced by misaligned beams in hollow plasma and enhancement of the wakefield amplitude driven by a self modulated long proton bunch with a tapered plasma. This work has major potential to impact the next generation of linear colliders and also in the long term may help develop compact accelerators for use in industrial and medical facilities U.S.
