Bleeker, Johannes Geiss, M. Huber, 2012-12-06 One of the most attractive features of the young discipline of Space Science is that many of the original pioneers and key players involved are still available to describe their field Hence at this point in history we are in a unique position to gain first hand insight into the field and its development To this end The Century of Space Science a scholarly authoritative reference book presents a chapter by chapter retrospective of space science as studied in the 20th century The level is academic and focuses on key discoveries how these were arrived at their scientific consequences and how these discoveries advanced the thoughts of the key players involved With over 90 world class contributors such as James Van Allen Cornelis de Jager Eugene Parker Reimar L. St and Ernst Stuhlinger and with a Foreword by Lodewijk Woltjer past ESO Director General this book will be immensely useful to readers in the fields of space science astronomy and the history of science Both academic institutions and researchers will find that this major reference work makes an invaluable addition to their collection The Life and Death of Planet Earth Peter D. Ward, Donald Brownlee, 2003 Planet Earth is middle aged Science has worked hard to piece together the story of the evolution of our world up to this point but only recently have we developed the understanding and the tools to describe the entire life cycle of a planet Ward and Brownlee a geologist and an astronomer respectively combine their knowledge of how the critical sustaining systems of our planet evolve through time with their understanding of the life cycles of stars and solar systems to tell the story of the second half of Earth's life The process of evolution will essentially reverse itself life as we know it will subside until only the simplest forms remain Eventually they too will disappear The oceans will evaporate the atmosphere will degrade and as the sun slowly expands Earth itself will eventually meet a fiery end From publisher description How the World Works: Planet Earth, 2021-04-15 Bacteria have been here for three and a half billion years and without them we have no chance whatsoever of survival Humans are something very recent like the froth on top of a glass of beer James Lovelock 1990 The rise and potential fall of humankind is just a part of the story of evolution and of the story of Earth but for us it is an important part Yet we have been here for but the twinkling of an eye in geological time and will likely be gone again just as quickly We will leave our scars just as the first cyanobacteria have left theirs The state and fate of the planet are in the news every day the changes in its climate ecosystems and atmosphere at the top of the news agenda Yet change is the hallmark of Earth s story In over four and a half billion years of existence it has gone from a hostile sterile lump of hot rock swirling in space to a temperate planet of water and soil cloaked with greenery and teeming with life This is its story ABOUT THE SERIES How the World Works is a full color illustrated series by Arcturus Publishing Each book provides an engaging introduction to a branch of human knowledge outlining key principles and charting its development across history up to the present day Open Space Mariel Borowitz,2017-12-15 An examination of environmental satellite data sharing policies offering a model of data sharing policy development case and practical recommendations for increasing global data sharing Key to understanding and addressing climate change is continuous and precise monitoring of environmental conditions Satellites play an important role in collecting climate data offering comprehensive global coverage that can t be matched by in situ observation And yet as Mariel Borowitz shows in this book much satellite data is not freely available but restricted this remains true despite the data sharing advocacy of international organizations and a global open data movement Borowitz examines policies governing the sharing of environmental satellite data offering a model of data sharing policy development and applying it in case studies from the United States Europe and Japan countries responsible for nearly half of the unclassified government Earth observation satellites Borowitz develops a model that centers on the government agency as the primary actor while taking into account the roles of such outside actors as other government officials and non governmental actors as well as the economic security and normative attributes of the data itself The case studies include the U S National Aeronautics and Space Administration NASA and the U S National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Association NOAA and the United States Geological Survey USGS the European Space Agency ESA and the European Organization for the Exploitation of Meteorological Satellites EUMETSAT and the Japanese Aerospace Exploration Agency JAXA and the Japanese Meteorological Agency JMA Finally she considers the policy implications of her findings for the future and provides recommendations on how to increase global sharing of satellite data Report of the Advisory Committee on the Future of the U.S. Space Program United States. suggest instead that the Earth may have had four billion years of good weather purely by chance If Earth like worlds don't have natural stabilising mechanisms then intelligent observers such as ourselves will only ever look out onto those rare planets where like the Earth all the bad things that could have happened to the climate have fortunately cancelled each other out So before you prepare to meet the aliens consider that we are probably alone School Atlas of Astronomy Alexander Keith Johnston, 1877 PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY M.
