Planning Education Reforms In Developing Countries The Contingency Approach Duke Press Policy Studies:

Planning Education Reforms in Developing Countries Dennis A. Rondinelli, John Middleton, Adriaan Verspoor, 1990 This work the first to apply contingency theory to education reform planning is particularly useful in that it has applications to planning both in developing countries and in the United States and Europe The basic approach applies to a wide variety of development programs and will influence project management and policy administration Resources in Education, 1992

Geographische Zeitschrift Alfred Hettner, Heinrich Schmitthenner, Albert Kolb, 2000 Improving Primary Education in Developing Countries Marlaine E. Lockheed, Adriaan Verspoor, 1991 This study presents policy options for improving the effectiveness of primary schools in developing countries It examines problems common to most developing countries and presents an array of low cost policy alternatives that have proved useful in a variety of settings Resources in Education, 1992 American Book Publishing Record, 1990 Bibliographic Guide to Education, 1990 Pathways to Educational Transformation and Development Norrel A. London, 2003 A significant turning point in education in developing nations took place as the designated countries acceded to political independence having crossed the border from centuries of colonial rule Education was ascribed human capital value and was considered a vital contribution to the planning and development process In Pathways to Educational Transformation and Development Dr London chronicles this transformation in education in one developing nation Trinidad and Tobago Strategies adopted as well as some triumphs and failures are highlighted but the lessons that the episodes impart to the educational development planner are the most enduring features of the book Pathways is a significant contribution to the international thrust of education development in the aftermath of decolonization Cost-effectiveness of Education Policies in Latin America Ernesto Schiefelbein, 1998

New Acquisitions Unesco Institute for Education. Library and Documentation Centre, 1988 Environment & Planning, 1990 Primary Education Marlaine E. Lockheed, Deborah Bloch, 1990 This report presents policy options for improving the effectiveness of schools in developing countries The recommendations are based on a broad program of research and evaluation that takes into account various country conditions and experiences The text focuses on problems common to most developing countries and presents an array of low cost policy alternatives that have proved useful in a variety of settings The report is organized into six sections the first describes the importance of primary education and the present failure of education systems to meet their objectives The second section discusses three areas for improvement enhancing the learning environment improving the preparation and motivation of teachers and strengthening educational management The third section addresses the need to increase equitable access to schooling The fourth section covers strategies to strengthen the financial base for primary education The fifth section presents implications for World Bank action A summary of policy recommendations concludes the report Participation and Educational Change Charmian Thirlwall, Beatrice Avalos, 1993

A Framework for Collaborating for Educational Change Sheldon Shaeffer, 1991 Framing Questions,

Constructing Answers Noel F. McGinn, Allison M. Borden, 1995 This workbook is an example of an interactive expert system. It simulates the relationship between an education policy maker and an informed consultant. The consultant interviews the policy maker asking about the performance of the education system. The policy maker's answers to each question influence the next question that is asked. The consultant discusses results from studies in other countries to help focus questions. Eventually the questions lead to examples of programs tried out in countries with problems similar to those of the policy maker. All aspects of basic education systems are covered: finance, teachers, assessment, curriculum, material, buildings, and administration.

Third World Planning Review, 1990 Education in Small States Mark Bray, Steve Packer, 1993 An examination of the way in which the assets and problems of small states influence their education systems. It presents a conceptual framework, looks at issues of curriculum, regional co-operation, and foreign aid, and provides case studies including Brunei Darussalam, Montserrat, and Bhutan.

An Adaptive Ecosystem Approach to Rehabilitation and Management of the Cooum River Environmental System in Chennai, India Martin Joseph Bunch, University of Waterloo. Department of Geography, 2001

Unesco Africa, 1996 The Journal of Developing Areas, 1990
