Planning In The Public Domain:

Planning in the Public Domain John Friedmann, 2020-06-16 John Friedmann addresses a central guestion of Western political theory how and to what extent history can be guided by reason In this comprehensive treatment of the relation of knowledge to action which he calls planning he traces the major intellectual traditions of planning thought and practice Three of these social reform policy analysis and social learning are primarily concerned with public management The fourth social mobilization draws on utopianism anarchism historical materialism and other radical thought and looks to the structural transformation of society from below After developing a basic vocabulary in Part One the author proceeds in Part Two to a critical history of each of the four planning traditions The story begins with the prophetic visions of Saint Simon and assesses the contributions of such diverse thinkers as Comte Marx Dewey Mannheim Tugwell Mumford Simon and Habermas It is carried forward in Part Three by Friedmann's own nontechnocratic dialectical approach to planning as a method for recovering political community Planning in the Public Domain John Friedmann, 1984 Missouri River Basin Progress Report Interior Missouri Basin Field Committee, 1951 Planning Guidelines for the California Desert Program Development and Resources Corporation, 1971 Complexity Theories of Cities Have Come of Age Juval Portugali, Han Meyer, Egbert Stolk, Ekim Tan, 2012-02-03 Today our cities are an embodiment of the complex historical evolution of knowledge desires and technology Our planned and designed activities co evolve with our aspirations mediated by the existing technologies and social structures The city represents the accretion and accumulation of successive layers of collective activity structuring and being structured by other increasingly distant cities reaching now right around the globe This historical and structural development cannot therefore be understood or captured by any set of fixed quantitative relations Structural changes imply that the patterns of growth and their underlying reasons change over time and therefore that any attempt to control the morphology of cities and their patterns of flow by means of planning and design must be dynamical based on the mechanisms that drive the changes occurring at a given moment This carefully edited post proceedings volume gathers a snapshot view by leading researchers in field of current complexity theories of cities In it the achievements criticisms and potentials yet to be realized are reviewed and the implications to planning and urban design are The New Urban Agenda Bill Freeman, 2015-06-06 Equal parts history social science and call to action The assessed New Urban Agenda focuses on fixing the major issues facing the Greater Toronto and Hamilton Area GTHA Award winning author Bill Freeman shows how cities have overcome them in the past and gives level headed advice for tackling Toronto s biggest challenges Two Paths Toward Sustainable Forests Bruce A. Shindler, Thomas M. Beckley, Mary Carmel Finley, 2003 In recent decades new scientific information has transformed our understanding of forest ecosystems driving forest policy changes in both Canada and the United States The extraction oriented policies that dominated forest management for more than a century have given way to new approaches leading often to acrimonious public debate controversy over the interpretation of science and frequent litigation by groups who support conflicting points of view Today the U S and Canada face a common challenge to achieve a sustainable form of forest management that has wide public support Many books discuss the scientific changes underlying forest policy but this is the first to examine the social and economic aspects of sustainable forestry and the resulting impacts on resource policy in the two countries The authors attempt to make sense of citizens expectations for forests and the responses by public land managers and policymakers Contributors include sociologists research foresters economists political scientists and geographers as well as scholars in recreation and tourism Together their writings provide an in depth interdisciplinary perspective on Canadian and U S efforts to manage public forests on a sustainable basis The premise of Two Paths toward Sustainable Forests is that academics and students resource professionals policymakers and members of industry environmental and forest community groups can benefit from a comparison of the situations on either side of the border By comparing the challenges of sustainable forestry and the different approaches adopted in Canada and the U S this book points the way towards potential solutions to common Environment and Planning ,2002 Pamphlets on Forest Bibliography ,1896 Why Planning Does Not problems Work? Tumsifu Jonas Nnkya, 2007 Lack of transparency and accountability in the planning practice allow for misuse and abuse of the planning system to serve the interests of the more powerful and influential groups including those entrusted with the powers of planning The outcomes of a non inclusive non transparent and insensitive planning include insecurity of land tenure rights and subsequently investments in land poverty informal land subdivision and building unplanned spatial growth and endless conflicts in land development These are detrimental to the residents and erode their trust and confidence in the government It takes an organized informed confident and courageous group of residents or community to reject the non inclusive form of planning and cause adoption of inclusive and collaborative planning that allows them space in the planning process The achievement of such an organized group a turn towards democratic planning practice leads to a conclusion that informed organized confident and courageous civil society is a pillar of democracy This book therefore argues that ineffective planning results among other things from defective land policy and legislation and planning inability to recognize and make use of opportunities for shaping the built environment In Search of New Public Domain Maarten A. Hajer, Arnold Reijndorp, 2001 In search of new public domain is a report of an intensive quest to establish the preconditions for the design of new public spaces On the basis of an analysis of the cultural geography of the network city the authors develop a new perspective of cultural exchange as a typical urban quality They are critical of the laments about the decline of the city and public space as much as of a naive faith in architecture and urbanism as saving graces A critical investigation of the new collective spaces that are popping up across the whole of the urban field offers an insight into the factors that facilitate the development of new public domain Through their clarification of the theoretical background and analysis of topical issues such as public safety and social segregation the authors offer insights and instruments for policy
