drivers of California's ecological patterns and the history of the state's various ecosystems outlining how the challenges of climate change and invasive species and opportunities for regulation and stewardship could potentially affect the state's ecosystems. The text explicitly incorporates both human impacts and conservation and restoration efforts and shows how ecosystems support human well-being. Edited by two esteemed ecosystem ecologists and with overviews by leading experts on each ecosystem, this definitive work will be indispensable for natural resource management and conservation professionals as well as for undergraduate or graduate students of California's environment and curious naturalists.

Plants of the San Francisco Bay Region Eugene N. Kozloff, Linda H. Beidleman, 1994 From the Redwood Forest Joan Dunning, 1998 Dunning, author and naturalist and Thron, a young activist who has devoted his adult life to capturing photographic images of the ancient redwood grove known as the Headwaters, collaborate on a book which goes behind the headlines to tell the story of a desperate collision between business and the environment. 20 illustrations, 32 pages of color photos, 3 maps. Garden and Forest Charles Sprague Sargent, 1889 A journal of horticulture, landscape art and forestry.

The Redwood Forest Save-the-Redwoods League, 2000 Evidence is mounting that redwood forests like many other ecosystems cannot survive as small isolated fragments in human altered landscapes. Such fragments lose their diversity over time and in the case of redwoods may even lose the ability to grow new giant trees. The Redwood Forest written in support of Save the Redwood League's master plan provides scientific guidance for saving the redwood forest by bringing together in a single volume the latest insights from conservation biology along with new information from data gathering techniques such as GIS and remote sensing. It presents the most current findings on the geologic and cultural history, natural history, ecology, management and conservation of the flora and fauna of the redwood ecosystem. Leading experts including Todd Dawson, Bill Libby, John Sawyer, Steve Sillett, Dale Thornburgh, Hartwell Welch and many others offer a comprehensive account of the redwoods ecosystem with specific chapters examining the history of the redwood lineage from the Triassic Period to the present along with the recent history of redwoods conservation, life history, architecture, genetics, environmental relations and disturbance regimes of redwoods, terrestrial flora and fauna, communities and ecosystems, aquatic ecosystems, landscape scale conservation planning, management alternatives relating to forestry, restoration and recreation. The Redwood Forest offers a case study for ecosystem level conservation and gives conservation organizations the information, technical tools and broad perspective they need to evaluate redwood sites and landscapes for conservation. It contains the latest information from ground breaking research on such topics as redwood canopy communities, the role of fog in sustaining redwood forests and the function of redwood burls. It also presents sobering lessons from current research on the effects of forestry activities on the sensitive faunas of redwood forests and streams. The key to perpetuating the redwood forest is understanding how it functions; this book represents an important step in establishing such an understanding. It presents a significant body of knowledge in a single volume and will be a vital resource for conservation scientists, land use planners, policymakers and anyone involved with conservation of redwoods and other forests
