The Politics of Coalition in Korea Youngmi Kim, 2011-04-05 This book examines how inter and intra party coalition building affects governability in South Korea Focusing on the Kim Dae jung administration 1998 2003 as a case study in the failure of a government to turn electoral success into stable governability or ability to implement reform policies the book s research draws on two bodies of literature which though focusing on the same dependent variable cabinet or government stability have rarely been used in tandem coalition research on parliamentary systems and studies of divided government in presidential systems Youngmi Kim argues that a weak institutionalization of the ruling party and the party system accounts for political instability and inefficient governability in Korea and in doing so her study makes a number of key contributions to the field Theoretically it proposes a framework which integrates a rationalist approach with one that acknowledges the role of political culture It further enhances the understanding of factors affecting governability after coalition building across regime types and aims to build on recent demands for broader cross regime analysis of minority divided government and of the determinants of governability This has important comparative implications as coalition building within semi presidential systems has occurred in other post authoritarian contexts The book finally provides a new dataset which fills a gap in a field where Western cases constitute the main focus of research The Politics of Coalition in Korea will be of interest to students and scholars of Korean studies Korean politics Asian studies and Asian politics Youngmi Kim is Assistant Professor at the Departments of Public Policy and International Relations and European Studies at Central European University Budapest Hungary

Pak, 2015-01-13 Nan-hee Park left Japan in 1939 to join her fiancé Won-sup Shim who lived in a port city on the East Coast of Korea which was not yet divided into North and South. As she was preparing to leave, her parents shared a premonition: She'd face tough times in her homeland. But it was just a vague, undefined fear that they did not connect to her fiancé's ardent support of Korea's movement to break free from the control of Imperial Japan. When Nan-hee boarded the train, she accepted a simple wood bracelet from her sister who said, "Remember me whenever you wear this." Neither sister knew it then, but they'd soon find their lives interrupted by a war that engulfed the world, one that would be quickly followed by a conflict that would separate the people of North and South Korea, leading to even more bloodshed. Though the war in Korea was forgotten by many, it swept away almost an entire generation, and life was never the same for the survivors. Learn why their stories are worth remembering in The Wood Bracelet. Secretive Century Tessa Morris-Suzuki, 2024-06-18 Monte grew up in a secretive century. She lived in a society where appearances mattered and keeping them up often involved creating silence around ancestral origins, painful memories, and personal desires. Monte Punshon refused to be labelled. She was at various times Ethel May Punshon, Miss Montague, Monte Mickey, and Erica Morley Punshon, moving effortlessly from the Methodist respectability of bourgeois Ballarat to the bohemian world of children's travelling theatre, from patriotic amateur acting to pioneering radio work, from a dear old lady with perfect nineteenth-century diction to the bad girl who frequented edgy Melbourne bars, playing a lively part in the secret drag parties of 1930s queer Melbourne. There were social as well as personal reasons for her concealment. In a life that spanned more than a century, 1882 to 1989, Monte Punshon witnessed crucial events in Australia's history, and her story shines a light on the hidden corners and complexities of late nineteenth and twentieth-century society. In this imaginative biography, Tessa Morris-Suzuki brings to life a woman who was unafraid to be and who accepted willingly the price of her liberation. UNPOS Quarterly, 2013-05. The Politics of Separation of the Korean Peninsula, 1943-1953 Pong-nyong Sin, 2008. Why was Korea separated? Why have the Koreans been unable to overcome the line of demarcation separating them over the last 60 years? Why did the Korean War break out? Many scholars studying contemporary Korean history have been conducting a detailed analysis of these very subjects. Traditionalists tend to place blame on the Communist Bloc, including

Soviet Russia while revisionists see the responsibility lying with United States anticommunist imperialism Throughout this controversial process Korean scholars have been neglectful of a self in dealing with these issues Based on historicism this book considers at its core a series of tragic Korean historical events as civil or internal conflicts and aims to reflect on Korea's own historical mistakes and errors In this respect this study can be categorized as being rerevisionist This book was written with the conviction that the Korean Peninsula was not divided by other external powers but separated from within

International Politics: People's Power, Preferences, and Perceptions, 3rd Edition Bruce Bueno De Mesquita, 2006 Leaders want to stay in power Their self interest is the decisive motivation for action in the international arena and forms the theoretical backbone for this exciting departure from other introductory international relations texts Through its discussion and development of the strategic perspective Principles of International Politics shows students how leaders translate their personal interests and ambitions into actions of the state and convincingly demonstrates how international and domestic politics are inextricably linked Clearly explaining both the foundational ideas of international relations as well as the key concepts of the strategic perspective Bueno de Mesquita effectively links these to the analytic tools students will employ throughout Documents on Ethiopian Politics Borg G.
