Easter, 2012-09-18 The postcommunist transitions produced two very different types of states The contractual state is associated with the countries of Eastern Europe which moved toward democratic regimes consensual relations with society and clear boundaries between political power and economic wealth The predatory state is associated with the successors to the USSR which instead developed authoritarian regimes coercive relations with society and poorly defined boundaries between the political and economic realms In Capital Coercion and Postcommunist States Gerald M Easter shows how the cumulative result of the many battles between state coercion and societal capital over taxation gave rise to these distinctive transition outcomes Easter's fiscal sociology of the postcommunist state highlights the interconnected paths that led from the fiscal crisis of the old regime through the revenue bargains of transitional tax regimes to the eventual reconfiguration of state society relations His focused comparison of Poland and Russia exemplifies postcommunism's divergent institutional forms The Polish case shows how conflicts over taxation influenced the emergence of a rule of law contractual state social market capitalism and civil society The Russian case reveals how revenue imperatives reinforced the emergence of a rule by law predatory state concessions style capitalism and dependent society Katholizismus und politische Macht im kommunistischen
