Psychology and Life Hugo Munsterberg, 2006-06-01 The poet creates mental life in suggesting it to the soul of the reader only the man who decomposes it afterward is a psychologist The poet works as life works the child who smiles and weeps causes us to think of pleasure and pain too but it offers us no psychological understanding of pleasure and pain Just so the poet smiles and weeps and if he is a great artist with strong suggestive power he forces our minds to feel with him while we have only an intellectual interest if he merely analyzes the emotions from Psychology and Art Whether or not you approve of the culture of mass psychology that resulted from the work of Hugo M nsterberg his continuing impact on American society is inestimable From the reliance on standardized testing in public schools to the corporate perspective on employees as human resources the practical applications of psychology to industry medicine education the arts criminal investigation and the social order that he pioneered still exert a dramatic influence on how we a century later continue to think about the mind and how it shapes human behavior In this seminal 1899 book M nsterberg explores the psychological view of personality the biological development of the psychophysical apparatus the teaching of psychology psychology of the child the artist as psychologist psychology and history psychology and mysticism and much more Also available from Cosimo Classics M nsterberg s The Eternal Life Science and Idealism Psychology and Social Sanity The War and America American Traits and Psychotherapy OF INTEREST TO students of psychology readers of social history AUTHOR BIO German American psychologist and philosopher HUGO M NSTERBERG 1863 1916 was professor of psychology at Harvard University from 1892 until his death He was elected president of the American Psychological Association in 1898 Handbook of Environmental Psychology and Quality of Life Research Ghazlane Fleury-Bahi, Enric Pol, Oscar Navarro, 2016-08-12 This Handbook presents a broad overview of the current research carried out in environmental psychology which puts into perspective quality of life and relationships with living spaces and shows how this original analytical framework can be used to understand different environmental and societal issues Adopting an original approach this Handbook focuses on the links with other specialties in psychology especially social and health psychology together with other disciplines such as geography architecture sociology anthropology urbanism and engineering Faced with the problems of society which involve the quality of life of individuals and communities it is fundamental to consider the relationships an individual has with his different living spaces This issue of the links between quality of life and environment is becoming increasingly significant with at a local level problems resulting from different types of annoyances such as pollution and noise while at a global level there is the central question of climate change with its harmful consequences for humans and the planet How can the impact on well being of environmental nuisances and threats for example natural risks pollution and noise be reduced How can the quality of life within daily living spaces home cities work environments be improved Why is it important to understand the psychological issues of our relationship with the global environment climatic warming ecological behaviours This Handbook is intended not only for students of various disciplines geography architecture psychology town planning etc but also for social decision makers and players who will find in it both theoretical and methodological perspectives so that psychological and environmental dimensions can be better taken into account in their working practices
