Abelard to Apple Richard A. Demillo, 2011-08-26 How institutions of higher learning can rescue themselves from irrelevance and marginalization in the age of iTunes U and YouTube EDU The vast majority of American college students attend two thousand or so private and public institutions that might be described as the Middle reputable educational institutions but not considered equal to the elite and entrenched upper echelon of the Ivy League and other prestigious schools Richard DeMillo has a warning for these colleges and universities in the Middle If you do not change you are heading for irrelevance and marginalization In Abelard to Apple DeMillo argues that these institutions clinging precariously to a centuries old model of higher education are ignoring the social historical and economic forces at work in today's world In the age of iTunes open source software and for profit online universities there are new rules for higher education DeMillo who has spent years in both academia and in industry explains how higher education arrived at its current parlous state and offers a road map for the twenty first century He describes the evolving model for higher education from European universities based on a medieval model to American land grant colleges to Apple's iTunes U and MIT's OpenCourseWare He offers ten rules to help colleges reinvent themselves including Don't romanticize your weaknesses and argues for a focus on teaching undergraduates DeMillo's message for colleges and universities students alumni parents employers and politicians is that any college or university can change course if it defines a compelling value proposition one not based in institutional envy of Harvard and Berkeley and imagines an institution that delivers it
