Or have one and don't know how to make the most of it? Take back your power and control your author finances with an author store. Your store is not just another retailer. With the right store, you can upsell, retarget, bundle products such as an ebook and a print book or whatever you like. No more rules. No more nastygrams. No more spending most of your ad budget to subsidise retailers sending your readers to a page with other authors' books on it. With a store, you can get paid now. That's right now and not in 60 days. And no more retailer cuts. Ever wondered who buys your books? Not any more. Now you have data and, depending on your storefront analytics, this book answers questions such as: What should you do when starting out? Which storefront would suit? Shopify, Payhip, WooCommerce, PayPal button or one of the others? What do you need to start a store and if you have a store, how do you optimize it? Do you really need to train people to buy from your store? What about international sales tax? It depends on buyer location, not just yours. Want to sell print but don't want to pay for print upfront, handle stock or go to the Post Office? And much more. Such as: Time to think differently about advertising. And how to manage change in the industry. Plus other insider tips. USA Today Bestselling author Morgana Best started selling print direct in 1993 and ebooks as well as print direct from her websites in 2003. She wasn't alone. In 2007, indie authors turned to the retailers, but now the tide is turning back to selling direct. The Price That Binds Shangwen Yi, David J. Hardisty, Dale W. Griffin, Thomas Allard, 2023. This research examines the effectiveness of two common types of restricted price promotions: threshold promotions (conditional on spending more than a threshold amount) or a promotion trigger, and capped promotions (limited to a maximum dollar value or a cap trigger). Results show that threshold promotions are more effective than comparable capped promotions, even though capped promotions dominate in economic savings when the promotional trigger value (the critical spending level) is low, because consumers use the trigger value as an expectation-based reference point, leading to perceptions of greater fairness. However, when the trigger value is high, this effect reverses, and capped promotions are seen as fairer and consequently are more effective than threshold promotions. We observe these results in a series of six pre-registered studies, including a field study on TikTok in both price and charity promotion contexts and for separate and joint evaluation modes. We discuss the implications of our results for the effective management of price promotions.
