Desorption Induced by Electronic Transitions DIET V Alan R. Burns, 1993-05-27 This volume in the Springer Series on Surface Sciences presents a recent account of advances in the ever broadening field of electron and photon stimulated surface processes As in previous volumes these advances are presented as the proceedings of the International Workshop on Desorption Induced by Electronic Transitions the fifth workshop DIET V was held in Taos New Mexico April 1-4 1992 It will be abundantly clear to the reader that DIET is not restricted to desorption but has for several years included photochemistry non thermal surface modification exciton self trapping and many other phenomena that are induced by electron or photon bombardment However most stimulated surface processes do share a common physics initial electronic excitation localization of the excitation and conversion of electronic energy into nuclear kinetic energy It is the rich variation of this theme which makes the field so interesting and fruitful We have divided the book into eleven parts in order to emphasize the wide range of materials that are examined and to highlight recent experimental and theoretical advances Naturally there is considerable overlap between sections and many papers would be appropriate in more than one part Part I focuses on perhaps the most active area in the field today electron attachment Here the detection and characterization of negative ions formed by attachment of electrons supplied externally from the vacuum are discussed In addition the first observations of negative ions formed by substrate photoelectrons are presented
