Kathryn S. Whitaker, Monte C. Moses

Public Schools Of Choice Ascd Issues Analysis:

Resources in Education ,1991 Charter Schools Steve P. Jefferson,2004 The purpose of this book was to describe the variables that contributed to the establishment of a charter school in an urban Arizona and rural California school district noting the similarities and dissimilarities and disclosing the factors used to justify implementation of the Montessori theory of education The secondary purpose of this book was to describe the guidelines for maintaining a charter school the evaluation methods and factors used in the school s unique experience with staff development The two schools experienced many similarities when the same variables were applied to both schools As a result the stakeholders of both schools used the principles of the organizational theory area of empowerment to implement choices in curriculum This book provides an insight for parents teachers and community leaders to develop strategies by utilizing the same principles to meet the educational needs of children An Ethnographic Study of Parental Perceptions Regarding Public Schools of Choice James Henry Sauter,1994 The Legislative Development and Enactment of the Milwaukee Parental Choice Program Barbara Johnson Wood,1999 Bibliographic Guide to Education ,1991 lists publications cataloged by Teachers College Columbia University supplemented by The Research Libraries of The New York Public Library An Investigation of Parent Behavior in and Satisfaction with the Controlled Choice Plan of the Saint Paul Public Schools Rita Marie Jandrich Thofern,1997 Public Schools of Choice Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development,1990 This analysis presents a realistic look at the potentials for schools and programs of choice Parent Attitudes and School Choice Carol Rawls Johnson,1997 Private Markets and Public Education Christopher Lubienski,1999 Contemporary School Administration Theodore J. Kowalski,Ulrich C. Reitzug,1993 ERS Bulletin Educational Research Service (Arlington, Va.),1988 Special Programs & Services in Schools Bonnie M. Beyer,2005 Developing a Teaching Style Robert D. Louisell,Jorge Descamps,1992 Achieving Racial Balance Sondra A. Stave,1995-11-20 Five case studies of mid sized Northeastern communities Dayton Hartford Rochester Trenton and Wilmington are used to examine and analyze school desegregation experiences Qualities likely to encourage the peaceful achievement of racial balance are described The study concludes that parents are most concerned about safety educational quality and their ability to exert influence over their children s schooling This study describes and analyzes how five communities in the northeastern United States have addressed the subject of desegregation Dayton Ohio Hartford Connecticut Rochester New York Trenton New Jersey and Wilmington Delaware share the experience of having increasingly large poor minority populations surrounded by mostly white generally affluent suburbs All five are similar mid sized urban communities which have been consistently or intermittently involved with school desegregation Historic and demographic issues legal considerations political administrative and community responsibility are explored by Stave as factors in the achievement of racial balance Scores of interviews augment legal decisions and public documents Stave finds that rapidly shifting populations make projections

somewhat risky however respecting certain widely held concerns will make desegregation more likely Parents seek a safe environment for their children and want to have a say in where their children are educated Committed and charismatic leadership extensive community participation the availability of enhanced educational components to guarantee a high quality of education cooperative city state relations and a metropolitan region large enough to discourage white flight are qualities likely to encourage the achievement of racial balance An important reading for public officials and scholars involved with education policy and urban and minority affairs

Putting Children First New York State Special Commission on Educational Structure, Policies and Practices, 1993

The Restructuring Handbook Kathryn S. Whitaker, Monte C. Moses, 1994 The authors present ten essential components to successfully restructure schools They organize these components into three categories the visionary elements quality improvement elements and collaborative elements The process of restructuring begins with a total reconceptualization of what schools are for and how they function During this process educational leaders must work to create a shared vision of success where student performance improves and the school is viewed as a model of organizational excellence Once the school vision and mission have been developed and articulated school leaders facilitate the realignment of curriculum instruction and assessment while reorganizing the school to fit the school's newly defined mission After presenting the visionary elements of restructuring the authors discuss concrete ways to improve school quality Enhancing the teaching profession implementing school centered decision making expanding the use of technology and providing excellent service lead to higher standards and improved performance for students teachers and administrators The collaborative elements of restructuring include increasing parent and community involvement building collaborative relationships internally and externally and providing extended services The authors emphasize the importance of building collaborative relationships within schools and then extending those relationships to the broader school community

Democracy's High School William G. Wraga, 1994 The comprehensive high school model emerged from the early 20th century struggle for a unitary as opposed to a dual system of secondary education and was outlined in the report of the Commission on the Reorganization of Secondary Education The Cardinal Principles of Secondary Education 1918 In this study Wraga traces the development of the model in the United States evaluating among other things the influence of sociopolitical forces on the historical interpretations of the model In the first book length historical study of the comprehensive high school he assesses the impact of successive reform movements on the model and offers recommendations for enhancing its effectiveness
