Playful Disruption of Digital Media Daniel Cermak-Sassenrath, 2018-04-07 This book starts with the proposition that digital media invite play and indeed need to be played by their everyday users Play is probably one of the most visible and powerful ways to appropriate the digital world The diverse emerging practices of digital media appear to be essentially playful Users are involved and active produce form and content spread exchange and consume it take risks are conscious of their own goals and the possibilities of achieving them are skilled and know how to acquire more skills They share a perspective of can do a curiosity of what happens next Play can be observed in social economic political artistic educational and criminal contexts and endeavours It is employed as a counter strategy for tacit or open resistance as a method and productive practice and something people do for fun The book aims to define a particular contemporary attitude a playful approach to media It identifies some common ground and key principles in this novel terrain Instead of looking at play and how it branches into different disciplines like business and education the phenomenon of play in digital media is approached unconstrained by disciplinary boundaries The contributions in this book provide a glimpse of a playful technological revolution that is a joyful celebration of possibilities that new media afford This book is not a practical guide on how to hack a system or to pirate music but provides critical insights into the unintended artistic fun subversive and sometimes dodgy applications of digital media Contributions from Chris Crawford Mathias Fuchs Rilla Khaled Sybille Lammes Eva and Franco Mattes Florian Floyd Mueller Michael Nitsche Julian Oliver and others cover and address topics such as reflective game design identity and people s engagement in online media conflicts and challenging opportunities for play playing with cartographical interfaces player emergent production practices the repurposing of data game creation as an educational approach the ludification of society the creation of meaning within and without play the internalisation and subversion of roles through play and the boundaries of play

Working Digital - Shaping Motivation and Behavior by Information System Design Elements Sascha Lichtenberg ,2024-09-18 The dissertation explores how digital labor platforms particularly crowdworking environments can be improved by incorporating Persuasive System Design PSD elements to address challenges faced by crowdworkers Crowdworking characterized by flexibility and autonomy often lacks the social interactions and acknowledgment typical in traditional work environments leading to feelings of isolation demotivation and decreased work quality To mitigate these negative effects the dissertation investigates how gamification and conversational agents CA can influence motivation and task performance in digital labor environments Specifically it focuses on how these design elements can promote well being improve motivation and enhance task related behaviors among workers by analyzing their pro task and pro user effects Findings Conversational agents create a sense of social presence helping to alleviate isolation but can also induce performance pressure Gamification elements like badges and leaderboards can improve task performance but need careful implementation to avoid overperformance A well balanced integration of pro task and pro user elements is essential to improve worker satisfaction and retain platform performance The Acknowledgment Matching Framework developed in the dissertation helps understand the effects of match mismatch of the internal performance perception with the external acknowledgments concerning individuals behavior and cognition Conclusion The dissertation concludes that designing digital work environments with well integrated PSD elements such as gamification and CAs can significantly improve motivation well being and performance among crowdworkers The work provides insights for scholars and practitioners to design digital labor platforms that promote positive psychological and behavioral outcomes while minimizing negative effects like isolation and demotivation
