

THE ARMS CONTROL–REGIONAL SECURITY NEXUS IN THE MIDDLE EAST

TYTTI ERÄSTÖ

I. INTRODUCTION

The interconnectedness of arms control and regional security is widely acknowledged in relation to attempts to rid the Middle East of weapons of mass destruction (WMD). Such efforts have thus far stumbled over disagreements about whether to prioritize arms control or regional security. International nuclear non-proliferation efforts in Iran, by contrast, have been pursued in relative isolation from regional security considerations. The limited focus on Iran's nuclear programme appeared vindicated by negotiation of the 2015 Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), which seemed at the time to have ended the crisis around Iran's nuclear programme. Negotiated between Iran and extra-regional powers, the JCPOA deliberately excluded regional security issues.

However, the US withdrawal from the agreement and its subsequent 'maximum pressure' campaign against Iran—justified largely in terms of Iran's regional activities—have highlighted the arms control–regional security nexus in the case of Iran. The resulting erosion of the JCPOA and deterioration in security in the Gulf underscore the need to build a firmer regional foundation for both conflict resolution and arms control in the Middle East.

This paper starts from the assumption that demilitarization of interstate relations could provide a more sustainable basis for arms control in the region and help to avoid dangerous excesses in the US–Iranian confrontation. On this basis, the paper assesses two recent openings for regional cooperation: backchannel preparations for subregional security dialogue in the Gulf, and the UN Conference on the Establishment of a Middle East Zone Free of Nuclear Weapons and Other Weapons of Mass Destruction (a WMD-free zone), which held its first session on 18–22 November 2019. While marked by considerable uncertainty, both processes can be seen to hold the promise of improved

SUMMARY

The erosion of the 2015 Iran nuclear agreement poses a risk for both Middle East regional security and the global nuclear non-proliferation regime. At the same time, it highlights the need to build a more sustainable regional foundation for conflict resolution and arms control in the Middle East. This paper argues that the arms control–regional security nexus should be better reflected in European policy. While maintaining the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA) and preventing further US–Iranian escalation should be the European Union's (EU) first priority, the paper urges the EU to develop a more comprehensive approach in support of regional security, arms control and disarmament in the Middle East. In addition to resolving inconsistencies in current EU policies on regional security, arms control and arms exports to the Middle East, the EU should consider throwing its political weight behind two emerging processes that could provide a much-needed opening for regional cooperation: security dialogue in the Gulf and the annual Middle East weapons of mass destruction (WMD)-free zone conferences at the United Nations. If it involved regional non-proliferation cooperation, the former process could also help manage the negative consequences of the potential collapse of the Iran nuclear agreement.

Practical Peacemaking in the Middle East David J. Pervin, Steven L. Spiegel, 2014-04-08 First Published in 1995 In the wake of the breakthroughs in the bilateral negotiations between Israel and respectively the Palestine Liberation Organization PLO and Jordan for the first time the interaction between Arabs and Israelis has the potential to be dominated by cooperation rather than conflict This volume grew out of an international conference held at the University of California Los Angeles in June 1993

Beyond the Handshake Dalia Dassa Kaye, 2012-08-14 Arabs and Israelis have battled one another in political and military arenas seemingly continuously for some fifty years The 1991 Madrid Peace Conference sought to change this pattern launching bilateral and multilateral tracks in the Arab Israeli peace process As a result a broad group of Arab states sat down with Israel and began to cooperate on a wide range of regional issues in what became known as the Middle East multilaterals Yet why did enemies reluctant even to recognize one another choose to cooperate on regional problems And once this process began what drove the parties to continue such cooperation or in some cases halt their cooperative efforts Beyond the Handshake addresses these fundamental questions exploring the origins of the multilaterals and the development of multilateral cooperation in the areas of arms control and regional security economic development water management and the environment Dalia Dassa Kaye challenging conventional concepts of cooperation argues that multilateral cooperation in the Middle East must be appreciated as a process of interaction rather than solely as a set of outcomes Presenting theoretical insights of value to students of regional and international relations Beyond the Handshake provides a unique look at the evolving nature of Arab Israeli relations and exposes the foundation the multilateral peace process laid for future regional cooperation in the Middle East

Non-Proliferation, Arms Control and Disarmament Division,1997 The papers compiled in this report attempt to determine under what conditions and to what extent cultural factors make a difference in the elaboration and execution of non proliferation arms control and disarmament NACD policies They seek to clarify a concept of security cultures that draws upon the diplomatic political strategic and social elements that go into security policy making Culture as it refers to NACD issues consists of those enduring and widely shared beliefs traditions attitudes and symbols that inform the ways in which a state s or society s interests and values with respect to security stability and peace are perceived articulated and advanced by political actors and elites The papers cover a range of states and regions south east Asia China India Latin America and the Middle East Each examines a range of concrete issues and cases connected with NACD issues and orientations towards security more generally Israel Gregory S. Mahler,2000 The International Library of Politics and Comparative Government brings together in one series the most significant journal articles to appear in the field of comparative politics in the last twenty five years It makes accessible to teachers researchers and students an extensive range of essays which provide an indispensable basis for understanding both the established conceptual terrain and the new ground being broken in the fast changing field of comparative political analysis Research Paper ,1988 Co-operative Security and Non-offensive Defence in the Zone of War Yannis A. Stivachtis,2001 The decades of the 1980s and 1990s represented the golden era of alternative security reflected politically in the idea of co operative security and militarily in proposals concerning the adoption by states of non offensive defence strategies Alternative security aimed at addressing the political and military problems in Europe created by the East West confrontation When the Cold War ended efforts were undertaken to apply the principles of co operative security and non offensive defence in world regions other than Europe However political realities have prevented many states from adopting such policies and strategies This volume seeks to provide an empirical contribution to the existing literature on co operative security and non offensive defence by focusing on the Greek Turkish and the Arab Israeli conflicts

It argues that for states living in what has been called the zone of war the adoption of policies of co operative security and non offensive defence is highly unlikely and to a considerable degree dangerous A set of conditions is put forward as a prerequisite for the acceptance and implementation of the above mentioned policies by the states concerned It has been written in such a way that it can be used as a textbook by students or anyone else interested in security analysis strategic studies and international relations It has been based on the idea that the three fields are so interconnected that any effort to examine an issue in the light of only one of these fields may seriously distort reality The book can also be useful to those interested in the Greek Turkish and the Arab Israeli conflicts It examines not only the issues in dispute but most importantly it points to the strategic logic which underlines the policies and attitudes of the actors involved in these conflicts Bulletin of Regional Cooperation in the Middle East ,2001 IGCC Newsletter ,1993 National Threat Perceptions in the Middle East James Leonard,1995 Regional Economic Cooperation Colin Andre Carter,Hyunok Lee,Daniel Alan Sumner,1995
