COURSE MATERIALS:

Required:

- Fundamentals of General, Organic, and Biological Chemistry, 7th edition, by John McMurry, David S. Ballantine, Carl A. Hoeger, and Virginia E. Peterson (Pearson), ISBN 0-321-75083-9
- Sapling Learning online homework (see below for details); BE SURE to get the one labeled University of Central Arkansas - CHEM 2450 - Spring16 - WEAVER
(Online link: <http://www.saplinglearning.com/ibiscms/course/view.php?id=47399>)
- Laboratory material provided on Blackboard--you will be responsible for downloading the appropriate material for each lab.
- Approved (ANSI Z.87) laboratory eye protection (available at the bookstore or from members of the Student Affiliates of the ACS)--be sure that they are approved for use with chemicals; woodworking goggles are NOT acceptable. Each student must provide his or her own safety eye-wear; no safety eye-wear will be available to borrow.
- Close-toed shoes for lab (a pair of leather shoes that cover the whole foot is recommended; sandals, flip-flops, and other types of open-toed shoes are NOT permitted)

Optional:

- Calculator--it does not have to be a graphing calculator, but it should have scientific notation (EE or EXP) and logarithm function buttons (log, 10^x). This type of calculator is available for less than $10 at a local retail chain. You should know how to use it (if you don't know, come to see me in person and I will help you). Calculators in cell phones, tablet computers or laptops may not be used. Also, you may not share a calculator with a classmate during in-class tests or quizzes.
- Lab coat or apron
- Study Guide and Full Solutions Manual - Fundamentals of General, Organic, and Biological Chemistry, by Susan E. McMurry (Pearson Prentice Hall, ISBN 032177616X)

COURSE DESCRIPTION AND OBJECTIVES: From the UCA Undergraduate Bulletin 2015-2016, "Courses in Chemistry," (<http://uca.edu/ubulletin2015/courses/chemistry/>) CHEM 2450 Introduction to Organic and Biochemistry: "Continuation of CHEM 1402; a required course for BS in Nursing and other allied-health baccalaureate degrees. Organic and biochemistry topics related to physiology and the health-related sciences. Introduction to the structural formulas and reactions of organic molecules followed by the chemistry of biological substances, including their metabolism. Lecture, small-group work, and laboratory instruction are used. Three hours of lecture and 2 hours of laboratory per week. Prerequisite: Grade of C or better in CHEM 1402. Fall, spring, summer."

NOTE: The accompanying course schedule (syllabus) is approximate; it may be necessary to modify the schedule slightly from time to time. If such adjustments must be made, I will try to give you as much advance notice as possible. Be sure to check the course on Blackboard frequently, as changes may be posted there without mention in class.

CLASS PREPARATION: This course deals with the basics of general chemistry. You will be expected to demonstrate an understanding of many different principles as well as problem-solving skills. The laboratory is an integral part of the course. Lab exercises are designed to illustrate and clarify lecture material. You should make every effort to relate the lab experiments to the material covered in lecture.

Even more than in CHEM 1402, you will find that new material builds on previous chapters; an ongoing review of material covered previously will be necessary as you progress through this course. Chemistry is not a "spectator sport." Studying chemistry every day will be crucial for your success in this course. Read the text. Study your notes. Review. Do the problems and homework. You will find that your studies will be more effective if you try to understand basic concepts and the connections between them, rather than trying to memorize every little detail. The general college "rule of thumb" is that you should spend two hours outside of class for every one hour in class. You don't have to do it all in one sitting--break it up into smaller bites, and reward yourself each time you accomplish the task you set out to do.
