The Development of Religion, the Religion of Development Ananta Kumar Giri, Anton van Harskamp, Oscar Salemink, 2004 Development is a key concept for thinking about the global relations between nations in particular between North and South But what exactly does it entail and in which forms do development practices manifest themselves Are we dealing with aid or with co operation or perhaps with encounter And which motives philosophies of life and ideas about the course of nations and other human communities are lurking behind the programs of actual development Why has the concept become so popular that it seems to have become a substitute for the concept of history Could it be that development programs which are usually rationally conceived evaluated and managed betray hegemonic practices despite the good intentions of donor nations and development agencies Or are development programs aiming at integration of the South into a global market If so could it be that the belief in development is some kind of a secular quasi religious view on the ways nations and people must develop We know after all that religion often is a motivating source for many people involved in development practices These questions are addressed in short essays by eminent experts in the fields of development studies cultural anthropology development policy and social philosophy They critically analyse the discourses used in development practices The ultimate focus of the essays is on the ways in which political and development agencies deal with morality religion and spirituality The authors come from Great Britain India Indonesia and the Netherlands This volume will be attractive to those working in the fields of development cooperation missionary work and faith based international solidarity Book jacket

a blueprint about how we should live our lives with just rewards for the righteous and due punishments for sinners and transgressors Science on the other hand offers no such explanations about the universe or the meaning of our lives and no comfort for the unanswered longings of the human race Is religion a form of wish fulfilment a collective delusion to which we cling as we try to fathom our place and purpose in the drama of cosmology Can there be morality without faith Are science and religion radically incompatible What are the roots of fundamentalism and terror theology These are some of the questions addressed in God Freud and Religion a book that will be of interest to psychoanalysts psychologists and psychotherapists students of psychology psychoanalysis philosophy and theology and all those with an interest in religion and human behaviour Dianna Kenny is Professor of Psychology at the University of Sydney Australia She is the author of over 200 publications including six books
