Reason's Nearest Kin Michael Potter, 2000-03-16 How do we account for the truth of arithmetic And if it does not depend for its truth on the way the world is what constrains the world to conform to arithmetic Reason's Nearest Kin is a critical examination of the astonishing progress made towards answering these questions from the late nineteenth to the mid twentieth century In the space of fifty years Frege Dedekind Russell Wittgenstein Ramsey Hilbert and Carnap developed accounts of the content of arithmetic that were brilliantly original both technically and philosophically Michael Potter's innovative study presents them all as finding that content in various aspects of the complex linkage between experience language thought and the world Potter's reading places them all in Kant's shadow since it was his attempt to ground arithmetic in the spatio temporal structure of reality that they were reacting against but it places us in Godel's shadow since his incompleteness theorems supply us with a measure of the richness of the content they were trying to explain This stimulating reassessment of some of the classic texts in the philosophy of mathematics reveals many unexpected connections and illuminating comparisons and offers a wealth of ideas for future work in the subject
