Canadian Slavonic Papers, 1990     Vygotsky and Cognitive Science William Frawley, 1997 Is a human being a person or a machine Is the mind a social construction or a formal device It is both William Frawley tells us and by bringing together Vygotsky's sociocultural theory of the mind and cognitive science's computational model he shows us how this not only can but must be To do so Frawley focuses on language particularly on how the computational mind uses language to mediate the internal and the external during thought By reconciling the linguistic device and the linguistic person he argues for a Vygotskian cognitive science Frawley begins by exploding the internalist externalist dichotomy that presently drives cognitive science and falsely pits computationalism against socioculturalism He replaces the reigning Platonic paradigm of computational mind science with a framework based on an unusual unified account of Wittgenstein thus setting the stage for a Vygotskian cognitive science centered on three aspects of mind subjectivity real time operation and breakdown In this context he demonstrates how computational psychology accommodates a critical aspect of Vygotskian theory private speech as the mind's metacomputational regulator An examination of certain congenital disorders such as Williams Syndrome
