Personality Research, Methods, and Theory Patrick E. Shrout, Susan T. Fiske, 2014-04-04 Donald W Fiske s professional life and collaborations are themselves a textbook in the development of the field of personality From the field s early origins in personnel selection rating accuracy and psychotherapy outcomes to its current status of theoretical and methodological maturity complete with mid life crises the field has been fundamentally changed by Fiske s work and the changes have influenced generations of scholars This festschrift is a celebration of Fiske s impact but not merely of his impact on the history of personality research Instead the volume focuses on ongoing debates and issues that have been framed or influenced by Fiske s work The festschrift s three sections are organized around three themes in Fiske s writings themes that also correspond to three periods in his career This volume examines current thinking about what can be known about personality how constructs relevant to personality psychology are best measured and how to approach specific research problems in personality and related fields The contributors create an eminent cross section of the development and current status of personality methods In addition to Fiske s eminent contemporaries the contributors to this volume include Fiske s former students collaborators and his two children both of whom are behavioral scientists The accomplishments of his students colleagues and children testifies to the range of psychologists who have benefited from his scholarly and practical wisdom This collection is a valuable textbook for an advanced graduate course as well as appealing as a scholarly resource Many of the contributors are renown psychological leaders who have made available their latest original thoughts The book concludes with an essay by Fiske offering his perspective on the central themes behavioral and social science metatheory methods and strategies

The Social Construction of the Person K.J. Gergen, K.E. Davis, 2012-12-06 This volume grew out of a discussion between the editors at the Society for Experimental Social Psychology meeting in Nashville in 1981 For many years the Society has played a leading role in encouraging rigorous and sophisticated research Yet our discussion that day was occupied with what seemed a major problem with this finely honed tradition namely it was preoccupied with accurate renderings of reality while generally insensitive to the process by which such renderings are achieved This tradition presumed that there were brute facts to be discovered about human interaction with little consideration of the social processes through which factuality is established To what degree are accounts of persons constrained by the social process of rendering as opposed to the features of those under scrutiny This concern with the social process by which persons are constructed was hardly ours alone In fact within recent years such concerns have been voiced with steadily increasing clarity across a variety of disciplines Ethno methodologists were among the first in the social sciences to puncture the taken for granted realities of life Many sociologists of science have also turned their attention to the way social organizations of scientists create the facts necessary to sustain these organizations Historians of science have entered a similar enterprise in elucidating the social economic and ideological conditions enabling certain formulations to flourish in the sciences while others are suppressed Many social anthropologists have also been intrigued by cross cultural variations in the concept of the human being
