Infectious Disease Challenges in Solid Organ Transplant Recipients, an Issue of Infectious Disease Clinics Joseph G Timpono Jr., Princy N. Kumar, 2013-06-28 The potential etiologies of infection are diverse and these infections can often progress rapidly in SOT patients Diagnosis can be difficult owing to the altered anatomy that sometimes follows transplant surgery Many of the areas related to infections in SOT recipients are unresolved and controversial and recognized emerging issues include donor derived infection the impact of pandemic influenza in the SOT recipient and drug resistant infections

Recent Advances in Immunosuppression-Related Swine Diseases Gang Wang, Leyi Wang, Taofeng Du, 2024-07-25 Pigs are important agricultural animals with ancient domestication history and economic value and have become important sources of protein for humans Infectious diseases affect the health of pigs and the stability and productivity of the global swine industry The emergence and reemergence of several contagious swine diseases in recent years have posed a severe threat to pig production globally Increasing concern has been raised about the immunosuppressive effect caused by immunosuppressive swine pathogens in recent years such as porcine reproductive and respiratory syndrome virus PRRSV porcine circovirus PCV African swine fever virus ASFV classical swine fever virus CSFV pseudorabies virus PRV among others Infection with variant strains of PRRSV PRV and the low virulence strains of ASFV increase the pathogenicity of opportunistic infectious agents causing secondary disease challenges which can result in more complicated clinical symptoms and severe diseases These diseases lead to increased treatment expenses reduced swine herd growth rate and feed conversion rate However with the ongoing viral evolution and the emergence of novel variants current research into the mechanisms underlying immunosuppression remains inadequate highlighting the urgent need for further investigation

Immune studies of SARS-CoV2 and vaccines using preclinical modeling William Murphy, Cordelia Dunai, Smita S. Iyer, 2025-01-28 The world wide pandemic involving SARS CoV2 in which high infectivity and pathogenesis necessitated the critical need for rapid and accurate preclinical modeling of this new virus Unfortunately the species restricted tropism of the CoV2 spike protein towards human and not mouse ACE2 seriously hampered the ability to understand pathogenesis and potential efficacy of potential therapeutics and vaccines Vaccine responses are particularly imperative given the likely need for continuous vaccine administration and viral evasion processes This barrier necessitated the development of genetically altered mouse models or adapting the virus to infect murine cells The immune responses underlying SARS CoV2 infection are complex as are the immunopathology associated with infection and resolution in which multiple organs and tissues are affected This is highlighted by the occurrence of prolonged pathology and symptoms termed Long Covid well after resolution of infection and also coupled with the high mutation rate of the virus Preclinical models allow for mechanistic dissection of the pleiotropic effects of the virus as well as vaccine responses These can include mouse models but also involve non human primate models all of which have advantages but limitations that must be considered when extrapolating to humans Preclinical models may also include in vitro modeling components
